Mr. Hughes on Monroe.
To Protect Husbands.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

(Copyright, 1928.)

JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER, JR., invited Robert W. Stewart, head of Standard Oil of Indiana, to resign. Stewart, his friends say, won't resign, and "Wall Street" says, "war coming in Standard Oil ranks."

UNLESS the Rockefeller family has changed, that war will be like an express train meeting a small automobile at a crossing. When "an irresistible force meets an immovable obstacle" the immovable obstacle is apt to move, if the irresistible force happens to be the combined resources of the Rockefellers and their friends.

A LITTLE war, starting between China and Japan, may become big war. You never can tell what will happen when a lighted match is dropped in a forest.

Enough has happened already to show the difference between Japan and China. The French have a saying, "Comme on Battrait la China," "like beating China." According to the French, beating China is the easiest thing in the world. Japan did it easily the last time. Millions of Chinese didn't even know the war had begun.

However, Chinese are brave, and murdering each other, North fighting South, they have learned things they did not know before.

"Let him not boast that putteth his armor on."

"IN THE early days," not long ago, two men stood shoulder to shouder at the workbench of a little shop in Detroit. One of them, with a keen, thin face, "was always thinking." That was Henry Ford. The other, David Gray, died yesterday, in Santa Barbara, leaving a fortune of millions that will be increased two or three millions, thanks to a recent income tax decision.

HENRY FORD works on, starting in the automobile business all over again, with a new car, planning a new, more powerful tractor, working on new ideas that will mean millions for a few, good wages for many.

Fortunate were many, close to Ford "in the old days." Fortunate are all that Think as they work.

CHARLES EVANS HUGHES renders public service in his lecture tour, "Relations to the Western Hemisphere." Mr. Hughes shows enemies of the Monroe doctrine that they are all enemies of this country and this continent. The Panama Canal and aviation make that doctrine, "Essentially defensive, threatening none, a safeguard with which no responsible American would be rash enough to attempt to dispense."

VIENNA'S "League for the Protection of Men" seeks to protect them against designing wives.

The League writes to Charlie Chaplin, "Austria is a hell for husbands," and invites him to come and tell about America.

Mr. Chaplin, who has had rough experiences, could tell the protected husbands, "You ain't seen nothing until you explore Hollywood."

SCHOPENHAUER, in his studies in pessimism, says women are engaged in a conspiracy "to make every man support some one woman all of her life."

That, fortunately, is true. And that wise conspiracy has gradually civilized men during the past 1,000,000 years. They are not really civilized yet, as any wife can testify.

ROBERT WEINER, once sentenced to death, walks to freedom after 13 months in the death house.

Twelve men walked past him to the electric chair while he waited his turn. Once more in the sunshine, he said, "Gee, it's great to be out."

A death house residence, with the electric chair close by, is necessary to make many human beings realize life's value.

CONGRATULATIONS to Jiji Shimpo, Japanese newspaper, and Toichiro Araki, energetic Japanese. The latter yesterday finished in 33 days, 16 hours, 26 minutes, a trip around the world, financed by Jiji Shimpo. Araki used only established lines.

SOME day men will fly around the earth as fast as the sun seems to go around it, in 24 hours, about 1,000 miles an hour. Those now living will see the trip made in 48 hours.

SARAH SWIDE

Sarah Swide, 1228 Wylie avenue, warehouse clerk, Feitler Bottle Company, 1026 Watson street, was the only woman among 10 arrested when Federal prohibition agents raided the place and confiscated whisky and chips. She was released on bond with the others. Miss Swide says she knows nothing of liquor handling by her employers and complains that the agents "took my books away and haven't brought them back yet."

Rocks Graft Ring

The Federal grand jury probe into the liquor traffic in the North Side has spread. Today among the witnesses were several residents of the South Side, called to tell of conditions there. It was reported that the booze traffic over the entire city will be dealt with.

When the hearing was resumed this afternoon it was estimated that there were 70 witnesses in the anteroom waiting to testify. The government is holding several of its star witnesses in reserve and they probably will not be called before Monday.

WITNESS JAILED

Meanwhile, Abraham Berkowitz, North Side saloonkeeper, the only witness before the federal grand jury whose name thus far has been disclosed, remains in the county jail. Charged with violating the Snyder act and imprisoned in default of $1,000 bail, Berkowitz today was described as being "between the devil and the deep sea," unable to obtain a bondsman. His attorney, Louis Little, said that Mrs. Berkowitz had gone from friend to friend holding a vigil far into the night, but had telephoned this morning that she could find no person willing to put up $1,000 bond for her husband.

Little believed that Berkowitz's friends hesitated because they feared to get mixed up in the case. Some, he thought, did not want to offend the police by subscribing to Berkowitz's bond and others did not want to take sides because they

Rain Halts Pirate Game

The final game of the Pittsburgh-New York series scheduled at Forbes Field this afternoon was called off on account of rain.

The postponement will be played off as part of a double-header on August 23, when the Giants will be making their second swing through the West.

Tomorrow the Brooklyn Dodgers will make their first appearance of the season here, opening a four-game series with the Corsairs.

The Weather

Light showers this afternoon, followed by cloudy and cooler tonight; Saturday fair; lowest temperature tonight about 50 degrees.

'SLUGGER' CONFESSES 27 WOMAN ATTACKS

Confessing to 27 attacks upon women in the last six months, a 17-year-old Negro boy today stood revealed as the stealthy slugger who has terrorized women from East Liberty to West End, beating several so severely they were sent to hospitals.

Stanley Martin, of 7 Janewood street, has been identified by five women as their assailant, according to Inspector of Detectives Clyde Edeburn. Thirty women visited detective headquarters last night and others came in today to view Martin at "standups."

LOOT RECOVERED

Detective Peter Connors went to Martin's home last night and found a number of powder puffs, silk and lace handkerchiefs which Martin is believed to have taken from pocketbooks. These were taken to the detective bureau for identification.

The boy, Inspector Edeburn said,

Attacker Flees As Woman Screams

In the front yard of her home, Mrs. Helen Pearson, 29 Negress, of 1 Plank street, was attacked today by a Negro who fled when she screamed. Walter Rose, 22, of 419 Covell way, was later arrested as the assailant.

Coal Fight Won

A voluntary reduction of 20 cents a ton on lake cargo coal from the Pittsburgh district was granted at a meeting of the presidents of the three northern trunk line railroads at a meeting in Washington, D. C., according to word received this afternoon by Donald O. Moore, traffic manager of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce.

This means that the Pittsburgh shippers will enjoy rates sought in their fight with the southern operators and will give them an opportunity to compete successfully in the lake cargo market.

NO FURTHER CUTS

Mr. Moore stated that the rate will go into effect about June 20 and said that there was little likelihood of any further cuts by southern roads.

"The action of the northern railroad executives indicates that they gave heed to the protests of Pittsburgh City Council and the Pittsburgh newspapers," Mr. Moore added. "It is only to be regretted that the railroads did not act earlier. Then Pittsburgh would have had a fair share of the lake market for the entire season."

The rate is provisional, authorized from June 1 to December 1, according to T. A. Dunn, chairman of the general traffic committee of the Chamber of Commerce, who received a private telegram from Washington.

The reduction restores the differential on Pittsburgh and Ohio coal to 45 and 48 cents, respectively, which is the basis approved by the Interstate Commerce Commission several months ago. The new rate is $1.23 a ton for Ohio coal, and $1.26 for coal from the Pittsburgh district.

JUDGE ORDERS "DRY" AGENTS PROSECUTED

Judge R. M. Gibson directed a verdict of acquittal in the liquor case of John Vincenty in Federal Court today and demanded the prosecution of four prohibition agents who, without search warrants, it was testified, broke down a rear door at 6318 Howe street to seize a still and liquor.

"I want this matter brought to the attention of United States Attorney Meyer and if he does not prosecute these agents I will go before the grand jury myself," declared Judge Gibson from the bench.

"Government agents should set a good example to others by obeying the law themselves. They have no right to enter a private home without a search warrant."

Vincenty was a butler in the home of Dr. B. Rasnik, at the Howe street address at the time of the raid, January 5, 1927. He was charged with possessing and manufacturing liquor. Dr. Rasnik, some months ago, pleaded guilty to transporting liquor illegally in connection with the case.

HAGEN WINS OPEN; SARAZEN SECOND

SANDWICH, England, May 11.—(INS.)—Walter Hagen, golf's greatest showman, put on one of his best acts today when he came from the rear with a typical Hagen rush to win the British open championship with a pair of 72s, for an aggregate score of 292.

It was the fifth straight triumph of an American in this once-impregnable British feature and the third scored by The Haig himself and in person, yet the Anglican gallery had become so inured to the sight of an American winning that it gave Hagen an ovation, even the Prince of Wales joining the applause.

Fighting courageously, Gene Sarazen made a valiant effort to overtake his fellow-countryman, but Gene could do no better than a good 73 in his final round and had to be satisfied with second honors with an aggregate of 294, two strokes behind Hagen. Archie Compston, England's lone hope as

ORPHANS MADE HAPPY

AT WORK AND PLAY

Children at the Pittsburgh Bible Institute Orphanage, near Wexford, are given instructions in arts, trades, domestic science and religion. Charles Wooston and George Fraga seem to get as much "kick" from running a ponderous tractor as does another group playing "Bull in the Pen." Among the lassies, skipping rope and the old swing bring real joy and health. All this care of parentless little ones was made possible through the efforts of the late Rev. and Mrs. C. G. Pridgeon, who founded the institute in Congress street 26 years ago. Mrs. Pridgeon, whose photo appears above, died recently. The orphanage farm consists of 650 acres and the institute has never taken a collection or solicited funds. All necessary money has come through prayer, officials of the institute say.

WEATHER TURNS NOBILE BACK

KING'S BAY, SPITZBERGEN, May 11.—(AP.)—The dirigible Itaha, which left King's Bay this morning for a 40-hour flight over the polar regions, returned after seven hours because of bad weather conditions.

The Italia had covered about 200 miles, much of it in a heavy snowstorm and a northwest wind which eventually compelled the dirigible to return to the Kings Bay base.

The crew of the Citta di Milano, the Italia's supply ship, was watching at the landing place and was in wireless communication with the airship and consequently was in readiness to haul her in.

KINGS BAY, Spitzbergen, May 11.—(AP.)—The dirigible Italia, ready for a flight to the North Pole, started her first trip into the Polar regions early this morning and was expected back at Kings Bay in about 40 hours.

The huge dirigible, under command of Gen. Umberto Nobile, who already has made one dirigible flight to the North Pole, took a northwestward course, the same as that taken by the Norge in 1926. It made about 38 miles an hour in a northwest wind and in half an hour was out of sight of those watching at Kings Bay.

It was believed that Gen. Nobile intended to explore the surroundings of the North Pole first and return about midnight Saturday night.

IN MILITARY UNIFORM

The crew of the ship met at the starting place at 6 o'clock this morning and boarded her inside the hangar to try out the motors. At 7:35 a. m., 200 Italian helpers took the ship from the hangar and Gen. Nobile, in the uniform of his rank in the Italian air service, came out of his headquarters and greeted his friends heartily, kissing and embracing them.

The two forward motors were started while Gen. Nobile posed for the camera men and the airship at 7:45 moved into the air as the ground crew let go the restraining rope.

had signed a statement admitting attacking and robbing or attempting to rob 24 white and 3 Negro women, 10 in East Liberty district, three in the vicinity of Pitt stadium, two in Schenley Farms, five on the North Side, four downtown and five others, mostly on the South Side.

Those who have identified the Negro, detectives say, include the following:

Mrs. Anna Glover, of 164 Georgetown avenue, West View, slashed with a razor on Jackson street, North Side, last March, and robbed of $25; taken to Allegheny General Hospital.

Mrs. Johanna Harvey, of 2508 Wyandotte street, wife of Fire Capt. William Harvey, attacked in front of her home March 21, struck on the head with a flower pot; taken to Passavant Hospital for severe scalp lacerations.

Miss Anna Sterling, 525 Galveston avenue, attacked March 3 at Galveston and Lincoln avenues, North Side, but put assailant to flight after he made a futile attempt to steal her pocketbook.

Mrs. R. Newman, 1323 Page street, attacked on the Pennsylvania Avenue Bridge, North Side, February 6; escaped clutches of Negro by running into nearby house.

Mrs. Kriemin, 115 Maurice street, Oakland, attacked in Schenley Farms district, February 16.

The Negro will be arraigned in Morals Court in a few days to face additional charges. He was held for court yesterday after admitting an attack upon Mrs. Marie Stringer, 34, a widow of 284 Journal street, West End, and robbing her of $1 while she was on the way to a drug store to procure ice for a sick child. Mrs. Stringer's father rushed at the Negro and had to be held back by police and spectators.

Blimp Men Balk on Being Left at Pole

KINGS BAY, Spitzbergen, May 11.—A group of the Italian Chasseurs aboard the Citta di Milano relief ship for Gen. Umberto Nobile's polar flight, today refused to join the North Pole flight under existing arrangements.

It was understood that Nobile planned to leave the Chasseurs at the Pole for several days while they conducted meterological work, after which Nobile would return to the Pole in the Italia and carry the Chausseurs back to civilization.

The group now claims they never agreed to this project and recalled that in Italy they had complained against the Arctic cold.

It was feared the polar expedition might be endangered unless the dispute was settled.

Bankers Escape Bombs

WHEELING, W. Va., May 11.—A tip that the Ohio County Jail was to be blown up in an effort to kill John Brandon, 50, and J. A. Brandon, Jr., 46, convicted bankers of New Cumberland, W. Va., caused the two men to be secretly removed last night. They were started for the Federal Penitentiary at Atlanta in automobiles.

United States Marshal Harry Weiss was informed that "Mafia" members who lost their life savings when the First National Bank of New Cumberland crashed had vowed vengeance on the Brandons. They were sentenced to serve 10 years each at Atlanta after pleading guilty to wrecking the bank in Federal Court here.

The two Brandons had been in hiding since the bank closed and appeared in court unexpectedly, asking that sentence be imposed at once as their lives had been threatened.

ACQUIT THREE IN BEATING AT MINE

GREENSBURG, Pa., May 11.—Tried on a charge of having beaten Louis Stenloch, of New Kensington, in a mine strike dispute, Amedio Sabatine, Fritz Otte and John Moskus were acquitted by a jury yesterday.

22-YR.-OLD SUIT LOST BY CHURCH

A 22-year-old lawsuit, then a jury out all night and more than half of the next day, resulted in a finding of $751.82 in favor of Architect F. J. Osterling in a suit against the Third United Presbyterian Church in Common Pleas Court yesterday.

Osterling was one of four architects who submitted plans in competition for the Third Church in Northumberland street. His plans to erect the building ran over $200,000.

Twice he revised the plans, but still the estimates were over $150,000 and the church building committee rejected them and got another architect. They sent Osterling a check for $200 to pay for his work, but he sued for the full architect's commission of 5 per cent on the cost of the building.

The case, tried before, had gone to the highest courts on appeal. Almost all the original parties to the transaction and members of the building committee are dead, and Judge James R. Macfarlane, permitted testimony of witnesses at the former trial to be read to the jury. The trial began Monday and ended Wednesday.

fear the federal authorities.

Berkowitz is no longer wanted by the federal authorities as a grand jury witness and there seems to be no reason why he should desire to remain in jail.

SUSPECTS QUAKE

So conclusive is the evidence against certain politicians and members of the police force that more than a score have anticipated virtually certain indictment by procuring bail bonds, duly signed and with the amount left blank, for presentation as soon as the grand jury findings are made known, it was rumored today at the Federal Building.

The conductors of the probe refused to discuss how many of the 90 men and women, who appeared Tuesday and Wednesday before the jury, have been recalled for further questioning. Special investigators of the prohibition department were busy yesterday either investigating the new angles which makes the case so much broader than it was first believed to be, or checking up on the testimony offered originally.

Yesterday the panel devoted the entire day to investigating cases other than the rum ring probe, in order to release witnesses. After the session today, the jurors will be excused from further deliberation until Monday.

3 Sisters And Youth Vanish

NEW CASTLE, Pa., May 11.—Three daughters of N. E. Musser, of Energy, near here, and Albert Brown, 19, of New Castle, disappeared after attending a dance at Neshannock Falls, Tuesday night, and police have been asked to locate them.

The girls are Gladys, 22; Helen, 19, and Bernice Musser, 17. Brown's auto which they used in going to the dance was found abandoned two doors from his home. According to parents of the missing girls and boy, there has been no trouble and no reason is known for their failure to return.

PRINCE ILL; PLEA TO BRITAIN FAILS

LONDON, May 11.—(AP.)—Chills and a fever were understood to be keeping former Crown Prince Carol of Rumania in bed today as the British government watched to see how soon he would obey the command to leave England by Monday. It was generally thought that France, where he lived quietly for two years, would be Carol's next haven of refuge.

In circles close to the French government it was held that there would be no objection to another sojourn by Carol in that country. His activities never amounted to what might be interpreted as an abuse of French hospitality. He seldom talked for publication, his only two interviews being carefully worded and non-committal.

Great surprise was expressed in Paris over Carol's volubility when he reached England and friends said many remarks attributed to him might have been distorted and perhaps never made.

The announcement of Sir William Joynson-Hicks, home secretary, in the House of Commons, that he hoped Carol would leave by Monday was interpreted as meaning that Carol's plea to be allowed to remain in England, coupled with his promise of good behavior, had been in vain.

BELLEVUE STATION COMPLETED

Bellevue's new postoffice will be formally opened tonight with exercises arranged by the Bellevue Board of Trade. The new building (above) was erected at a cost of $40,000 and is the result of the tireless efforts of Bellevue's citizenry and George W. Gosser, Pittsburgh postmaster. The office is a station of the Pittsburgh postoffice.

FIREMEN, QUICK! WHAT HE NEEDED

A Negro boy, anxiety spelled in capital letters over his face, ran breathlessly into No. 2 Fire Engine Company in Swissvale avenue, Wilkinsburg, last night.

"Is Mistuh Charlie Evans in?" he managed to ask Fire Capt. Bucky Thompson.

"No," Thompson answered, "he's on the other turn."

The boy's face dropped several inches. His eyes dripped worry. He wiped his brow and turned to go.

"What's the matter kid?" inquired Thompson, his curiosity aroused.

"Trouble, Mistuh boss," the boy explained. "Mistuh Charlie is my friend an' I need him right now, but I can't find him nohow."

"Well, what's the matter? Spill it!"

"You see, Mistuh boss, up near where at I live a friend o' mine's home's burnin' up and—"

Thompson's hand jerked a cord and a bell rang. Men sprang up.

"Where is it?" he shot at the young informer as the motor was being turned.

"Well, you see, Mistuh boss, it's at Number 1418 Lulu street, and—"

Five thousand dollars' damage was done to the house at 1418 Lulu street before Capt. Thompson and his men arrived.

War Drums Rumble in Eurasia

CHINA, RUMANIA IN TURMOIL

The war drums rumble on two continents, two Oriental nations fly at each other and a Balkan state, concerned over its regency, threatens to struggle within its own borders. Here are presented the principals occupying the spotlight of international affairs today and scenes depicting the strife that marks the latest episode in war-torn China's hard lot. Gen. Chiang Kai-Shek, Chinese Nationalist, by opening warfare against Japnese soldiers at Tsinan-Fu, Shantung province, China, refused Japan's ultimatum from Gen. Fukuda, commander. Baron Gi-Ichi Tanaka, Japanese Premier, then ordered mobilization of Japanese troops and Japan seized the Tsinan-Tsingtao Railroad, declaring a 14-mile neutral strip. Fighting there and around Tsinan is keen. Other Japanese army and navy leaders are Gen. Kawamura, Field Marshal Oku, Admiral Inoue and Admiral Togo. Japan is landing more troops. In Rumania, public sentiment among the peasants and in the army rests with young King Michael and his mother, Princess Helen, wife of Prince Carol, whom England has ordered from the country. Objection to the regency, threatening bloodshed if the Bratianu government isn't ended, holds little hope that Carol can gain the throne.

WOMAN MISSIONARY SLAIN IN CHINA

PEKIN, May 11.—(AP.)—United States consular advices from Tsingtao today revealed that Mrs. William T. Hobart, of the American Methodist Mission at Taianfu, had been killed on April 29.

The slaying was believed to have occurred during the battle between the Northern and Southern Chinese armies for the possession of Tainafu, which is about 30 miles south of Tsinan.

Mrs. Hobart was killed by a bullet fired through a small window in her bedroom from an opposite wall.

Details of Mrs. Hobart's death were received in a letter from Kiatainfu written on May 3 by Miss Helen Stumley, a member of the mission.

FEELING HIGH

SHANGHAI, May 11.—(AP.)—Tsinan has been cleared of Nationalists by the Japanese after a week of bloodshed, but anti-foreign feeling today was smoldering in Shanghai.

It was considered extremely risky for foreigners to venture into native territory. Japanese troops patrolled the Japanese section of the foreign city.

Japanese residents of Canton were evacuated to Shameen, the foreign settlement, and Hongkong. A run on the Taiwan Bank, a Japanese institution in Canton, by Chinese depositors because of the Tsinan clashes, resulted in foreign banks, especially American ones, gaining accounts.

A strong anti-Japanese boycott was under way in Canton. The city was placarded with anti-Japanese posters.

Efforts were also being made to effect an anti-Japanese boycott in Shanghai. Chinese department stores attempting to dispose of Japanese goods cut prices heavily, but few buyers were reported.

WU COMING TO U. S.

Dr. C. C. Wu, former minister of the Nanking nationalist government, has been asked to go to Washington to place the Shantung situation before the American government, Hwang Fu, present Nanking foreign minister, announced on his arrival in Shanghai from Tsinan. It was possible that Dr. Wu, who is now in Paris, would ask the United States to mediate in the Tsinan case. Advices from Tokyo said that government circles would not accept mediation since they did not consider that a state of war existed.

BORN IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, May 11.—(AP.)—The Methodist Episcopal Church Board of Foreign Missions today received a cablegram announcing that Mrs. William T. Hobart had been "killed by soldiers near Tsingtao." No details were given.

Mrs. Hobart, 68, was born at Flushing, L. I. She and her husband have been missionaries in China since 1882. Both were graduates of Northwestern University. They have four children. Two sons reside at Evanston, Ill., and two daughters are in the missionary service of the church in foreign fields.

Indicted at Erie Hour After Suicide

ERIE, Pa., May 11.—An hour after his body had been found dangling in the cellar of his home, August Schiff, 42, was indicted by the Erie county grand jury on a charge of assault and battery preferred by his wife, Mary. Despondency over marital troubles is believed by authorities to have prompted Schiff to end his life.

ONLY FIRE CHIEF NOT ACCUSED

MICHIGAN CITY, Ind., May 11.—(AP.)—As a result of charges by the Rev. Donald C. Ford that wholesale vice exists here, all but one of this city's appointive officers face expulsion.

Three of the five commissioners in this, the only Indiana city operated under the city manager form of government, have expressed themselves as favoring the discharge of all officers except the fire chief. They will have the opportunity of saying it with votes next Monday night.

On the list of those under fire are A. R. Couden, city manager; Police Chief Richard J. Kruse, the treasurer; the municipal judge, the city engineer and clerk, the director of finance and the water rent collector.

KING IN PAGEANT OF KNIGHTHOOD

LONDON, May 11.—(AP.)—A pageantry resembling the coronation of a sovereign on a small scale was witnessed in Westminster Abbey yesterday when King George attended the installation of 10 knights of the Grand Cross of the Order of the Bath.

In sweeping cloaks and trains of gold and scarlet, the king, the Duke of Connaught, great master of the order, and the knights and officers passed in solemn procession into the chapel of Henry VII, where the actual installation was performed. The only witness not a member of the order was Queen Mary. The rest of the Abbey was filled with wearers of more modern, and in some instances hardly less brilliant, uniforms. The Guards' Band gave forth martial music which mingled with the clanging of the Abbey bells.

Thousands outside beheld the spectacle when the King and his knights at the close of the ceremony crossed the lawn to the chapter house.

It is 15 years since a similar ceremony was held.

Pittsburgh As Others See Us

"The Carnegie Institute in Pittsburgh, though it holds an annual international exhibition of paintings, does not make Pittsburgh an art center."

—WALTER UFER.

WALTER UFER

WALTER UFER, artist, born in Louisville, Ky., July 22, 1876. After attending Louisville public schools was apprenticed to a lithographer; studied in Germany and at the Art Institute in Chicago, and was in the advertising department of Armour & Company. Won medal of the third class in International exhibition at Carnegie galleries in 1920. Resides at Taos, N. M.

I have your letter asking my opinion whether Pittsburgh is an art center.

There is only one genuine art center in the United States, and that is New York City. How can any country have two? Paris, London, Berlin, Rome, etc., are also centers.

The Carnegie Institute in Pittsburgh, though it holds an international exhibition of paintings, does not make Pittsburgh an art center. The paintings bought in Pittsburgh yearly are few compared with a city like New York. I doubt very much if I could make a living in Pittsburgh as a painter if I lived there.

The art work produced in Pittsburgh—the atmosphere prevailing there has little or no influence on the rest of the United States. Though Pittsburgh has many and wonderful motives, I do not believe that industry and steel allow much for the artistic atmosphere.

If I had to live in a city and paint I would only want to live in New York—but thank God I do not have to live in a city—I only visit a city.

TRAP 10 IN $100,000 RUM RAID

After almost 12 hours of work Federal prohibition agents early this morning had removed 402 barrels of whisky and whisky chips from a raided warehouse at 1026-28 Watson street. Total value of the contraband would exceed $100,000, the agents announced. Three automobiles also were confiscated.

Those arrested were Manfred Feitler, 57, and Isaac Donovitz, 46, both of 5735 Hobart street, reputed proprietors; Sarah Swide, 23, of 1228 Wylie avenue, a clerk; Jesse Levy, 21, of 70 Roberts street; Joseph Abbott, 31, of 3957 Perrysville avenue; Elmer Morris, 22, of 1720 Watson street; Sam Green, 28, of 849 Highview street; Morris Greenberg, 20, of 849 Highview street; David Kart, 28, of 5726 Darlington road, and Harry Glick, 27, Highview street.

Other places raided, seizures made, and those arrested, according to the agents, follow: dwelling at 1320 Esplanade street, 75 gallons whisky, Jay Berman, Maurice Castello and Samuel Guardino; saloon at 1804 East Ohio street, two glasses whisky, Elmer W. Fawcett, Ruby Schwartz; dwelling at 1707 Cliff street, 50-gallon still, 11 gallons moonshine, Almo Riston; dwelling at 6325 Forward avenue, pint wine, William Dickerman; dwelling at 6337 Waldron street, five gallons moonshine, Morris Myerstein; dwelling at 6423 Forward avenue, two gallons moonshine, B. Diamond.

SENATORS HURRYING TAX BILL

WASHINGTON, May 11.—(AP.)—With a warning of full speed ahead if night sessions are to be avoided, Senate Republican leaders brought up their largest guns today to offset any Democratic attack during consideration of the more important rate schedules in the tax reduction bill.

Winning their first skirmish with the minority on the club dues and admissions taxes, the Republicans, who propose a $200,000,000 tax cut as against a $225,000,000 curtailment by the Democrats, successfully withstood another assault yesterday and restored to the measure the tax on sales on produce exchanges, repealed by the House, and full rate on the tax on sales or transfers of capital stock.

The voting developed a break in the Democratic ranks. While no record vote was taken on the first proposition, the vote was 46 to 29 for putting back into the measure the tax of two cents on each $100 sale or transfer of capital stock.

Senator Simmons, Democrat, North Carolina, leading the minority forces, suffered another defeat on his proposal for repealing the tax on issues of capital stock, amounting to five cents on each $100, the vote being 42 to 34 for retaining the levy. Several Democrats went over to the Republican camp on this vote.

Senator Caraway, Democrat, Arkansas, took up three of yesterday's debates in an attempt to raise the tax on produce exchange sales from one to 50 cents on each $100 transaction, but he was defeated 47 to 24.

BODY IN SEA -:- Only Carved Idols Hold Murder Secret -:- DEATH ENDS LOVE

VERNA, BOB

They faced each other, beautiful Verna and Bob Kingsley. "Why are you here?" she said slowly. "Why?—I demand to know." The answer? You'll find it Monday in the Sun-Tele in Two Stolen Idols.

IDOLS!

Two delicately carved, ivory idols were found in the pocket of Tom Kingsley—Tom who was mysteriously slain by an unknown hand.

SCARFACE'S BOAT!

Capt. Sweeney, from his tossing little schooner, saw, at the same time as his mate Marlow, the small object on the rough seas and sent Marlow to find out what it was. He found out. A murdered man. But did he find the murderer? Frank Packard's thrilling Oriental mystery, "Two Stolen Idols," the answer lies. Begin it Monday in the Sun-Tele.

IDOLS ALIKE!

In these two stolen idols, delicately carved of ivory, lay thhe mystery, the thrills, the passions, the loves of Tom Kingsley and Verna.

BONY HANDS!

The old man re-enacted for Bob Kingsley that terrible night when hideous bony hands clawed out from the iron grill. The slave traffic! Begin this shivering, enthralling story Monday in the Sun-Tele.

7 SOUTH SIDE FIREMEN OVERCOME

ROBBED OF $75 WHILE ON WAY TO TAKE JOB

Offered a job on a farm on the outskirts of Carnegie, Marion Dunn, of 9 Vine street, Carnegie, was robbed of $75 by his two prospective employers after he had accompanied the two for a short distance out of the borough. Dunn told his story to Carnegie police yesterday. The three had stopped to rest and Dunn drew his purse from his pocket to show that he was not entirely penniless. One of the strangers grabbed the money and the two ran.

GIRL SCOUTS TO HOLD FIELD DAY TOMORROW

More than 1,200 Girl Scouts will gather at Schenley Oval tomorrow for the annual field day, held under the direction of Miss Jeanne Christy of the county staff of Girl Scouts. The opening exercises will start at 10 o'clock when there will be contests of all kinds staged. A silver cup will be awarded the winning troop. There also will be a court of awards who will award merit badges to scouts. During the afternoon there will be a ball game.

RUSH 4 VICTIMS TO HOSPITAL

Seven firemen were overcome by smoke early today while fighting a stubborn blaze in the Terminal Warehouse, McKean street, South Side. Additional companies were called out when the seven firemen collapsed. The fire was confined to the storage rooms of the Chandler-Boyd Mill and Mine Supply Company on the mezzanine floor of the structure.

Four of the firemen are confined to the South Side Hospital, one suffering lacerations on the face and hands, as well as the effects of smoke. They are Capt. Joseph Hanlon of No. 11 Engine Company, cuts and effects of smoke; Hoseman Roy Weible and Hoseman Frank Dixon of No. 11 Engine Company, and Hoseman Joseph Hermeir of No. 11 Engine Company, all having been overcome.

Three firemen were treated at the scene and taken home. They are Capt. George Norton, Hoseman De Merio and Hoseman Ralph Herman, all members of No. 30 Engine Company.

And now—

A Discovery that will make the Children happy—Milk of Magnesia in a delicious wafer

THIS new way of taking Milk of Magnesia is simply wonderful, it is so pleasant. Just a fragrant, "tasty" tablet instead of the old-fashioned liquid dose. Now your children can be given Milk of Magnesia—and they will like it—in this new and better way. Yes, it is the purest Milk of Magnesia and each tablet is certified to be the same as two teaspoonfuls of the old-fashioned liquid kind.

The New Way

Doctors and dentists say that a Milnesia Wafer is the better way for everyone because, as it slowly dissolves, it penetrates into every corner and crevice, sweetening and purifying the whole mouth.

So it neutralizes the acid conditions that attack the teeth and gums before it is taken slowly into the stomach to relieve indigestion—sourness—food ferment,—quickly and pleasantly.

The Old Way

Buy a package today—all druggists have it in two generous sizes, 35 and 60 cents.

MRS. A. M. BIDDLE

Mrs. Adaline Merrill Biddle is taking part this afternoon in the program for the Southern Club's annual luncheon, Hotel Schenley.

DR. R. M. SANDS, EX-EDITOR, DIES AT 71

Dr. R. M. Sands, Lawrenceville physician for 45 years and city editor of the Pittsburgh Gazette about half a century ago died yesterday at his home, 107 South Graham street.

Dr. Sands, 71, was born in Plum township, near Unity. He was a graduate of the Western University of Pennsylvania, and of the medical school of the University of Maryland.

Before becoming associated with the Pittsburgh Gazette he was a reporter on the Pittsburgh Leader. During his newspaper career he helped to organize the Pittsburgh Press Club.

He was a member of the Allegheny County Medical Society and Crescent Lodge F. and A. M. He was a brother of the late Dr. J. D. Sands. Dr. Sands leaves a nephew and two nieces.

FIRST DRY CASE LOST IN TRIAL

The government lost its first liquor suit during the present term of the Federal District Court yesterday when a jury returned a verdict of acquittal in the trial of Antonio Affatigato, Frank Manna and Frank Foster, accused by prohibition agents of removing five five-gallon cans of moonshine whisky in a taxicab, and taking it into a house on Congress street. They were represented by Attorney Frank J. Zappala.

A short time afterward another jury acquitted Harry Rapoport on a charge of transporting 50 gallons of moonshine whisky on January 6. After his acquittal he entered a plea of guilty to another complaint charging him with transporting 15 gallons of moonshine whisky and was fined $300.

O. K. 3 APPEALS IN SEDITION

Tom Zima, Peter Muselin and Milan Roseter, convicted in Beaver county on charges of sedition, were allowed yesterday to appeal their cases to the Supreme Court. The men were sentenced to serve five years each in the workhouse and pay fines of $500 each. Following the sentence an appeal was taken to the Superior Court, which upheld the lower court. An appeal was then taken to the Supreme Court, which now will review the case on the constitutional grounds raised in the appeal.

WORK TO START AGAIN ON BUILDING

Work will be resumed soon on the Insurance Exchange Building at 307 Fourth avenue, according to those in close touch with controlling interests. No work had been done on the building for months because of financial difficulties.

Washington interests are back of the project which was largely financed by bonds, many of which were sold in Pittsburgh.

The steel work of the 21-story structure is practically complete. The walls will be constructed of buff brick and ornamental terra cotta. The work will proceed under the direction of Philip Julian, a Washington architect.

MEN'S SUITS
In the Newest Styles From the Better Makers
$35 $40 $45

There's a certain assurance in selecting apparel at Horne's. Especially in moderately priced clothes. Here's why—we're just as careful about the quality, the correctness of the styles, colors and patterns in our lower-priced lines as we are with our higher-priced.

New arrivals have brought assortments in the above three lines at a high point. The newest ideas—in fancy-mixed and plain blue woolens—for men and young men. At $45.00 are many two-trouser suits.

Other Suits, $50.00 to $85.00

EVERYTHING FOR EVERYBODY FOR SUMMER

The Dominating Vogue for Misses—

Transparent Velvet COATS
$28.50

Everywhere, one reads or sees evidences that the velvet coat is to be the dominant wrap for summer; but where has any one noted coats of lovely transparent velvet, in copy of a Patou model, at the low price of $28.50?

The Misses' Shop has prepared this delectable Saturday surprise. The coats—of transparent velvet in black, independence blue, hydrangea blue, cypress green or brown, or in modernistic prints—are in the style pictured, which Patou has especially designed to wear with the new longer, fuller, fluffier afternoon and evening frocks. They are lined with georgette crepe.

The many young women who are planning to have transparent velvet coats this summer, should choose them now, while this group lasts!

Misses' New Frocks of Scarf Prints
$16.75

It seems that the Misses' Dress Shop always has something new in prints, and tomorrow it will be scarf prints in a new group of frocks.

There are five two-piece models—four of them made entirely of the print, and one model with printed blouse and plain skirt.

• • • •

Also in the same group there are frocks of Americana prints, including a velvet-bow trimmed model.

. . . Horne's, Second Floor . . .

Junior-Misses' Frocks of Gay, Tubable Crepes

Here are more of those pretty, colorful crepe de chine frocks, for which Miss 13-to-17 finds so many uses, and which can be tubbed when they become soiled. Priced $16.75.

There are one and two-piece models, with bow trimmings, pattern tucking and pleated skirts; with long sleeves, or sleeveless. In sunlight yellow, rose, orchid, sky blue, ocean green, and rose-beige.

. . . Horne's, Second Floor . . .

New Printed Blouses
Special, $6.95

These are the popular type of printed silk overblouses, which are being worn with suits or plain silk skirts. In a wide choice of patterns and colorings, in collarless styles and styles with collars. There are six models, all told.

New Silk Ensembles
Seven Models for Women
$35.00

This is an unusual event in the Tailor-Type dress section, presenting silk ensembles in solid street and country club colors, two tones of the same color, and in combination of plain coat and printed frock.

They are very special values, both in quality of fabric and smartness of style—the dresses, alone, being regularly priced as much as is being asked for the complete costume. Uncommon patterns have been chosen for the printed frocks, including such combinations as gray-white-and-red, black-green-and-rose, black-cream-and-blue, black-and-pink.

Size range from 34 to 44.

CORAOPOLIS MASSES DATA FOR POWER PROBE

AWAIT MOVE BY FEDERAL BOARD

Citizens of Coraopolis today were awaiting action of the Federal Trade Commission on their appeal for an investigation of the sale of the borough's light plant to the Duquesne Light Company last year for $250,000, a sum declared to be scarcely 50 per cent of its value. With the material property of the plant the price included a perpetual franchise for supplying the borough with electric current.

Attorney Herman C. A. Hofacker, borough solicitor, said the only remedy left to the people, who, by their votes overwhelmingly opposed the sale of the plant, is through action of the Federal Trade Commission. A suit in the local courts on a state law was frustrated through the hasty action of the Duquesne Light Company in dismantling the property, he declared. A state Supreme Court decision reversing a similar suit was handed down while the borough authorities were preparing their papers.

In defense of the sale, it has been pointed out that the electric light rates were reduced 10 per cent by the Duquesne Combany, but to this, members of Council replied that the tax millage has been increased nearly 50 per cent and it has been necessary to increase the water rates. Street lights, power for the water works and other borough current costs $20,400 annually, whereas under the municipally-owned plant this was supplied free of charge.

L. K. Fleming is the only member of the Council favoring the sale of the plant to remain in office. His term expires next year. J. M. Marquis, another member voting for the sale, removed shortly afterward to South Carolina. W. H. Beattie, S. L. Mott and D. T. Gleason, who ran for re-election, were defeated.

The borough authorities are preparing data in anticipation of an investigation by the Federal Trade Commission. D. M. Skinner, who handled the deal for the Duquesne Light Company, was transferred to Albany, N. Y.

P. O. EMPLOYES PLEAD GUILTY

STEUBENVILLE, O., May 11.—Three former employes of the Steubenville postoffice, John O. Williams, 50; Israel Rothstein, 38, and Louis D. Galloway, entered pleas of guilty to one count of an indictment charging conspiracy to violate the U. S. penal code, when arraigned in U. S. District Court here yesterday.

Samuel Friedman, 33, another former employe of the office, told the court he did not wish to plead guilty and his case will be taken up at the June session in Columbus.

B. & O. BUILDS TRACK AROUND LANDSLIDE

HANCOCK, Md., May 11.—Ordering construction of a temporary track around the outer rim of a landslide, which yesterday blocked four tracks of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad near here, railroad engineers, supplemented by gangs of laborers, pushed forward last night to clear the rails of tons of earth which resulted in temporary delay of train schedules. The two tracks nearest Hansrope Mountain were buried under 60 feet of earth when part of the slope tumbled, while those in a more remote position from the cliff were covered by 40 feet of dirt and stone. The landslide covered the rails for a distance of nearly four-fifths of a mile. bh qu-

TWO EN ROUTE TO PEN IN BANK FAILURE PLOT

WHEELING, W. Va., May 11.—(AP.)—John A. Brandon and James E. Brandon, Jr., former officials of the insolvent New Cumberland First National Bank, sentenced to 10 years each in Atlanta prison for misapplication of funds, today were en route to the Federal prison. Guarding against possible remonstration, the two men were placed aboard a train in custody of U. S. Marshal Harry E. Weiss and an aide. Federal bank examiners found a shortage of $400,000 in the bank's affairs, it was stated in court when the men were arraigned to enter pleas of guilty.

SEMINARY AND PASTOR BENEFIT THROUGH WILL

HARRISBURG, May 11.—(AP.)—The Auburn Theological Seminary at Auburn, N. Y., and its president, the Rev. Dr. George B. Stewart, are named equal beneficiaries of an estimated $50,000 bequest contained in the will of Miss Sibyl Weir, filed for probate here today. A specific bequest of $2,000 to the seminary is also included in the will.

An estimated valuation of $200,000 has been placed on the estate and the joint gift to the seminary and Dr. Stewart will be paid after other bequests are met. Dr. Stewart is a former pastor of the Market Square Presbyterian Church here, of which Miss Weir was a member.

Men and Women! How Much Weight Would You Like to Quickly Gain?

One Very Thin Man Gained 28 Pounds in Eight Weeks

A woman quickly loses her charm and attractiveness when she gets below normal weight.

Her health also is apt to suffer and that means a decrease in energy and vivacity.

Some women have become so thin that people call them scrawny or skinny. Many underweight women are more to be pitied than blamed—they don't know what to do to gain flesh and attractiveness.

People are underweight because the food they eat is not assimilated—does not get into the blood to build firm, healthy flesh.

Correct this condition and weight will undoubtedly go to normal and that haggard look and flabby skin ought to disappear.

Burl Craig, of Indianapolis, speaks highly of McCoy's Tablets as a builder of weight and strength.

Read This Letter:

"I highly recommend McCoy's Tablets. They have helped me wonderfully. Before I took them I felt tired and run-down and lazy and didn't want to do a thing but lie around, now I feel fine and work all the time and have gained both weight and strength, thanks to McCoy's Tablets."

McCoy's Tablets are sugar-coated and easy to take—old folks and children who are run down and thin take them readily, but read McCoy's fair and square offer.

McCoy takes all the risk—read this ironclad guarantee. If after taking four 60-cent boxes of McCoy's Tablets or two one-dollar boxes any thin, underweight man or woman doesn't gain at least five pounds and feel completely satisfied with the marked improvement in health—your druggist is authorized to return the purchase price.

The name McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets has been shortened—just ask for McCoy's Tablets at May's Drug Stores or any drug store in America.

Blown to Bits

WAR SOUVENIR

Finding a time-bomb on "Bunnie Hill," Beaver Falls, a discarded souvenir of some World War soldier, Jack McGlacken, 8; Henry Zachewicz and two other boys took it into an alley nearby "to try it out." Jackie was almost instantly killed when the bomb exploded. Zachewicz suffered severe cuts about the arms and legs and Joe Hoffner, 14, was bruised. Jackie was blown to bits.

REAL ESTATE

Page & Lawler are planning a large two-story brick and steel automobile display room at Baum boulevard, Liberty and South Atlantic avenues, East End. They have purchased for the site the Henry Schuster property with a brick automobile sales room fronting 45 feet on Baum boulevard, for $50,000; the Archibald Mackrell lot, 44x128 feet, for $35,000, and the Bernard Albern property, 50x120 feet in South Atlantic avenue.

TRIES TO HURL WIFE IN RIVER

HUSBAND HURT IN FIGHT WITH POLICEMAN

Paul Edems, 1106 Progress street, North Side, and Patrolman Edward Voegler, 1125 Progress street, were in Allegheny General Hospital yesterday with injuries received in a fight following an alleged attempt by Edems to hurl his wife into the Allegheny River.

Edems, it is alleged, accused his wife Isabel, 21, of keeping company with other men, and, enraged at her denials, dragged her to the river brink and attempted to throw her in.

Voegler, summoned by neighbors, was struck on the head by a brick hurled by Edems. Edems then resisted arrest, it is charged, and Voegler used his mace.

Edems, subdued, was taken to the hospital by Voegler, where both were held.

FREE POLICE IN NEGRO'S DEATH

Injuries suffered during a terrific battle two weeks ago caused the death of Michael Holden, 29, Negro, of 22 South Twenty-seventh street, last Monday in the city hospital at Mayview. Patrolman John Boehm, reporting at the South Side Police Station, who battled with Holden, struck in self-defense, a deputy coroner reports.

Boehm was called to the house on April 27 to quell a fight started by Holden, the investigation revealed. He was knocked down and when he fell across a bed, Holden is said to have jumped on him and beat him over the head with a milk bottle. Boehm, the report states, struck Holden on the jaw with his mace.

PRISONER DIES, HURT IN CELL

A fall against the bars of his cell in the North Side Police Station today was fatal to James Gray, 41, of 1112 Sawmill way. He died in Allegheny General Hospital of a fractured skull two hours later. Arrested yesterday for attacking his mother, he was seized with a fit in his cell when ordered to appear for a hearing.

Why They're Using Joint-Ease for Burning Feet

Just because it is now known that burning, sore, aching, swollen feet are caused by trouble in the many joints in the foot and Joint-Ease gets right in to the seat of the trouble—the cartilage and ligaments of the joints.

And to think that for generations we have been powdering and soaking our feet, thinking the trouble was only skin deep—an old-fashioned idea.

Well, better late than never—just stop the powdering and medical bathing and other foolishness for three days and just rub on Joint-Ease—and remember when Joint-Ease gets in foot agony and burning get out—quick—60 cents a tube.

Druggists everywhere—60 cents a tube.

FARES HOLD UP TAXI DRIVER

Two male passengers, accompanied by two "flappers," robbed Frank D. Shipp, 27, of 1 Spinneweber street, Overbrook, driver for the Green Cab Company, of his taxicab and $3.50 near Homestead Park early today, he reported to county detectives.

Shipp was hailed by the two couples in Flowers avenue, Hazelwood, he said. At an isolated place in Mifflin township, he felt two revolvers pressed against his back. He was compelled to leave the cab, and while one man pointed a revolver at his head the other took his money.

The men leaped into the cab and drove away with their girl companions, described by Shipp as "very young."

Detectives today are searching for the cab, which bore No. 27 and ". ense No. 07-227.

RUSSELL THAW

"I like it," admitted young Russell Thaw, son of Evelyn Nesbitt, divorced wife of Harry K. Thaw, as he arrived in Pittsburgh today to visit his mother, who is singing in a night club. "It," of course, is Pittsburgh. Russell, just 17, has gone enthusiastic over aviation and intends to be here, he assured, for the national balloon races Memorial Day.

WILKINSBURG BLAZE CAUSES $5,000 LOSS

Fire caused $5,000 damage to the home of A. W. Brevard, Negro, 1418 Lulu street, Wilkinsburg, last midnight. The family was absent when the flames were discovered.

RUSSELL THAW IS HERE, ALL PEP

Russell William Thaw, 17-year-old son of Evelyn Nesbit, is in Pittsburgh today visiting his mother, who is performing at a local cabaret, and his maternal grandmother, Mrs. Charles J. Holman, wife of the secretary of the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange.

"Where's the 'Nat'?" the boy asked, rubbing the sleep out of his eyes, on being roused from bed at the William Penn Hotel this morning.

"Want a swim as an appetizer for breakfast?"

"No, I don't need that," the lad grinned. "I can eat any time. But yesterday was the first day I missed from the pool in months. I'm a life guard on the beach at Atlantic City in the summer, you know. I worked for a month at the convention hall, too.

"I was going to Winchester preparatory school, but couldn't make the grade in 'math' and flunked out. I may go to Princeton 'prep' in the fall. I think I would like to study medicine. I may be an aviator. No, the stage don't appeal to me."

Russell said his nickname at school was "Russ." He said his mother never called him "Pompom." She called him by a German pet name for a baby—"'Pupchen,' or something like that," he said.

CANADIAN WHEAT CROP KILL REPORTED HEAVY

OTTAWA, Ont., May 11.—(AP.)—A crop report issued by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics today gives the proportion of winter-killed wheat as 21 per cent or 213,500 acres. The area of fall wheat remaining to be harvested is given as 796,900 acres. The percentage winter-killed compares with 13 per cent in 1927 and 1926 and is larger than in any year since 1918.

SPRING COATS

Accent Smartness

$25 39.75 $59

Indeed, the first requisite in the choice of a coat is that it must be smart. Splendid quality, of course, and beautiful tailoring—but smart. And the coats in these three comprehensive groups are just exactly that.

Kasha coats affect the feminine vogue for capes and scarf-throws . . . or they're intricately seamed and tucked. Black silk coats grow smarter each day. Sports coats of tweed are swanky in cut and color. Women's and misses' sizes.

STAGE AND SCREEN ACTIVITIES DETAILED IN PICTURES AND GOSSIP ABOUT PLAYERS

Gossip From Hollywood About Movie Stars and Announcements Concerning Amusements in Theaters

Lois Wilson Starring on Stage And Screen; Sister Constance Gets Chance at Film Portrayal

By REGINA CREWE.

(Copyright 1928, King Features Syndicate.)

LOS ANGELES, May 11.

LOIS WILSON is "doubling in brass" these days. For the lovely Lois will star in a picture and a stage play at one and the same time. Lois has been retained for the girl role in "Sally's Shoulders," which will be made under the supervision of Leon D'Usseau. And she will also appear in "The Queen's Husband" at a local theater, with Edward Everett Horton in the husband part.

This is the play that reminded Broadway of Queen Marie when the show was in New York. Lois is one of the few screen stars who make an exceptionally good impression on the stage, which shows what an American school teacher can accomplish if she sets her mind to it.

Incidentally, Lois' little sister, Constance Lewis, is the third of the family to seem destined for film fame. Constance is playing a bit in "The Barker," and has impressed First National executives so favorably that tests are being made which will surely result in "bigger and better" parts for her.

Lots of things are happening on the First National lot at Burbank. As you know, Johnny Hines and Harry Langdon are both busy on their final pictures for that organization, and Charlie Murray and Jack Munhall have been promoted to stardom to take their places in the comedy firmament. Mary Astor is leaving after her present film is completed, and Alice White is now a star instead of a script girl. You remember that her first starring pictures will be called "Show Girl" and "Bluffers." After these she will make "Rosie of the Ritz" and "On the Air," which, of course, is a radio story. First National has borrowed Paul Lukas from Paramount to play opposite Billie Dove in "The Night Watch," and our prophesy of a week ago that Laurence Gray would be Colleen Moore's leading man in "Oh Kay" has come true.

Mae Murray seems to have taken a leaf from the book of Gilda Gray in that she will produce her own pictures and make personal appearances. It is understood that her films will be shown in all the Pantages theaters. Mae has engaged Arthur Gregor, an Austrian, as her director, and the name of her first effort is "Hungarian Rhapsody." Gregor made a couple of films for Tiffany-Stahl, but they say he developed temperament and quit the job when one of them was re-edited.

Another of the imported players to fold her tent and speed back to the homeland is Marietta Milner, the attractive German girl who has made two or three pictures during the two years she has spent in the land of the free. Marietta had parts in two Meighan photoplays, and I think one other. But she never reached the stage of being featured. There is a little mystery surrounding Camilla Horn's European journey. In some quarters it is said that the trip is merely a visit. In others, that the blonde Camilla is through with Hollywood, despite the seeming brilliance of her future.

HELPFUL GIRL -:- REAL WESTERN -:- ACTOR TAKES AIR

Marion Davies may be helping Orville Caldwell in this scene from "The Patsy," but Orville's face doesn't say so. The film comes to the Penn next week.

Chief Creeping Bear is a former United States Army scout. Sue Gillian is a champion cowgirl. They come here next week in 101 Ranch.

Wallace Beery, who, you will agree, is more or less known as a movie actor, has bought an airplane for his own pleasure, devoting much of his time between pictures to aerial journeys.

Pianist

Grace B. Martin, pianist, is to appear with Norma Altvater, soprano, and Ernest Rabock, baritone, in the second May concert in the Allegheny Branch Y. M. C. A., Monterey street and North avenue, North Side, Saturday evening. These concerts are free to members and the general public.

COMEDY PLAY IN BILLS

In "The Family Upstairs," comedy to be presented by the George Sharp Players in the Pitt next week, Gus Forbes plays a rather pathetic man who is very patient with his wife, who constantly reminds the family that she is not well.

People who have seen the Bible spectacle, "The King of Kings," which comes to the Alvin next week, remarked on the work of H. B. Warner in the title role. He is said to make the part of Jesus a most human one. Two performances will be given daily after the opening Monday night.

Sammy Cohen and Ted McNamara will be seen on the screen in the Davis next week in "Why Sailors Go Wrong." Sammy and Teddy, besides being eccentric comedians, are well-known dancers from the vaudeville stage.

Three factors not usually recognized by the average movie audience are pre-eminent in "Wings," the war film which is now in its fifth week in the Nixon. These are the sound effects, the music and the remarkable photography. "Wings" begins its sixth and last week Monday.

HOMER SMITH OPENS NEW SEASON TONIGHT

Preparatory to opening its schedule of river outings the excursion steamer, Homer Smith, arrived early today and docked at the foot of Water street. Its first excursion of the season will be conducted tonight under the auspices of the Western Union Employes' Athletic Club. Several new features have been added to the vessel's equipment and throughout the season dance music will be furnished by Everett Merrill's seven-piece orchestra. The steamer will run river outings every night, and afternoon and moonlight trips on Sundays.

DAVE HARMON TO OPEN NEW SANDERS' SEASON

Special features, added innovations and orchestras of note are to be offered during the tenth annual season in Sanders, Aspinwall, which is to open Monday night, the management states. Dave Harmon and his orchestra have been selected for a two-week engagement in Sanders', beginning Monday night. This will mark Harmon's first Pittsburgh engagement since his long run in the Penn Theater last fall.

VOTE MACHINES SPEED C. OF C. VOTE COUNT

The use of six voting machines enabled Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce officials to announce the result of the annual election of directors yesterday half an hour after the polls had closed. At least six hours' labor of counting ballots and tabulating results was saved by the use of the machines.

The 12 successful candidates of the 24 names on the ticket:

L. C. Bibler, traffic manager of the Carnegie Steel Company.

William G. Costin, chairman of the board of the Pittsburgh Screw and Bolt Company.

Harry Dangerfield, secretary and treasurer of Reymer Brothers, Inc.

George R. Dorman, president of the Stevenson & Foster Company.

Fred C. Haller, president of the Haller Baking Company.

Morris Knowles, president of Morris Knowles, Inc.

John H. Nicholson, vice president of the National Tube Company.

William B. Rodgers, president of the Rodgers Sand Company.

W. F. Rust, vice president of the Koppers Company.

Lloyd W. Smith, president of the Union National Bank.

Henry Tranter, president of the Tranter Manufacturing Company.

E. T. Whiter, vice president, Central Region, Pennsylvania Railroad Company.

The judges of election were: Pressley H. Bailey, chairman; Joseph C. Russell, Frank Stauler, R. W. Philips, Carl S. Von Senden and L. V. Stevens.

YOUTH ACCUSED IN AUTO DEATH

CHARLEROI, Pa., May 11.—Charged with operating the automobile that killed Gladys Kohut, 3, several days ago, Matthew Fulton, 12, was turned over to Juvenile Court following a hearing before an alderman here yesterday. The youth, according to police, took an auto belonging to an older brother without his consent, and when he lost control of the car on a grade, it mounted the curb and struck the child standing on the sidewalk.

RETURN BIGAMY SUSPECT

Ben Morgan, 32, of 1021 Ivanhoe street, arrested yesterday in Erie on the charge of bigamy, was being returned to Pittsburgh today by City Detectives ClarenceR aeder and Edward McEntee. Morgan is alleged to have married Miss Eva Toffalou, 28, of Sampson way and to have fled with $410 of her money. At the time of his marriage last week, detectives say, he deserted his wife and four children.

TECH DRAMA STUDENTS IN SHAKESPEARE PLAY

Members of the freshman class of the department of drama of the Carnegie Institute of Technology began their production of Shakespeare's "Midsummer Night's Dream" last night in the theater of the college of fine arts. Performances are scheduled also for tonight and tomorrow night. E. Martin Browne, assistant professor of diction and a director of the department, is staging the play.

3 Millions of dollars cash reserve to command price concessions on fine woolens and materials.

4 Two great factories with the finest known facilities and equipment.

5 2600 employes whose ownership of Richman stock valued at $6,000,000.00 is reflected in the quality of their work.

6 Continuous, full-time operation of our factories without a shut-down except for the annual paid vacation we give our employes.

7 Nation-wide sales "direct from our factories" through 31 stores, 500 factory sales agents, and a big mail order department.

8 One standard price everywhere, and every day in the year—$22.50 for any suit, topcoat, or tuxedo suit which includes a silk dress vest—saving our customers the middleman's profit.

9 Selling for cash—no credit losses—and no extravagance in the operation of our 31 stores.

10 An enviable reputation for fair dealing with the public—the Richman guarantee of satisfaction, with our good name and entire assets back of it, protects the buyer.

Richman's Clothes have established a new and higher standard of value for the entire clothing industry—they are made, not to meet a price, but to satisfy the style and quality requirements of well dressed men—the price is low because of the far reaching power of Richman resources—the economies of scientific volume production and direct from factory sales without a middleman's profit.

But there is no economy in a low price unless you get quality in materials and workmanship—inferior woolens and tailoring are not cheap at any price, for they give no satisfaction.

Richman's Clothes have earned the confidence of the public through half a century's continuous leadership in value giving—you may choose any suit or topcoat from our big stocks with assurance that it will give you authentic new style, rigidly tested all wool fabric, and tailoring you may depend upon for lasting style and long wear.

And you will find, here, for your selection, a greater variety of models and fabrics at one price than others show at all prices combined—every wanted model, weave and shade, in sizes and proportions to fit any figure perfectly.

STATE FIGHTS INSURANCE WAR WITH TEXAS

9 PENNSYLVANIA FIRMS BARRED IN ROW

AUSTIN, Tex., May 11.—(AP.)—Nine Pennsylvania fire insurance companies seeking permits to operate in Texas, will not be allowed such permits until Pennsylvania authorities take action on the application of the Trinity Fire Insurance Company, Dallas, for entry into that state, R. I. Cousins, Jr., chairman of the Texas insurance commission, announced yesterday.

Cousins said he had been informed that other states contemplated similar moves against Pennsylvania. Clarence Hobbs, former Massachusetts insurance commissioner, who was also here today, said he had the same information.

In a statement he issued, Cousins claimed that after the Trinity company had made repeated efforts to get into Pennsylvania, or to obtain information as to how to do so, he took the matter up with Matthew H. Taggart, Pennsylvania insurance head. Taggart told him, Cousins said, the former "had under consideration the question as to wether the insurance needs of Pennsylvania were not adequately served by the companies already admitted," and that "any action on the Trinity application had been deferred until a policy had been outlined with regard to the matter."

The Texas chief stated that Taggart "did not even contend that his refusal to license the Trinity was fortified by statutory authority."

GIVES RING TO CHURCH AS CONSCIENCE HURTS

WHEELING, W. Va., May 11.—After wearing for six years a diamond ring he found in a local department store, an unidentified man has decided his conscience will no longer permit him to keep it and he has sent it to Bishop J. J. Swint, of the Catholic diocese, for "whatever disposition is deemed best."

EAGLE WITH SIX-FOOT WINGS CAPTURED IN OHIO

NEW PHILADELPHIA, O., May 11.—H. H. Regula captured an eagle with a wing spread of six feet, six inches when one claw was caught in a hawk trap on his farm. The huge bird is being exhibited in a cage on his farm.

Bitten

ANDREW DOUGLAS

Bitten on the finger while he was delivering packages in Wilkinsburg, Andrew Douglas, 17, 4106 Winterburn street, Hazelwood, was the second victim of the same dog. Harry Sisco, 15 Soho street, was the other. Paul Houston, Montview street, owner, was ordered to keep the dog tied for observation.

County Employes, Absent Without Excuse, Docked

BEAVER, Pa., May 10.—"No work, no pay, is the Galton way."

County Controller Charles C. Galton has posted a notice on the bulletin board at the Court House that all clerks who are absent without reasonable excuse will be "docked" for the time absent.

"The county observes all the holidays and clerks are given vacations with pay, but I object to paying for additional vacations with the taxpayers' money," said Controller Galton.

COURTSHIP BY LETTER ENDS IN MARRIAGE

NEW PHILADELPHIA, O., May 11.—An interpreter was called in to assist in the marriage ceremony of Miss Rosa Wyman, 19, who arrived 24 hours previously from Switzerland, and Ernest Meos, 33, husband of her sister, who died two years ago. The courtship was carried on by correspondence.

WAYNESBURG STUDENT BURNED WITH ACID

WAYNESBURG, Pa., May 11.—Fred Hill, high school senior, son of County Treasurer Frank R. Hill, suffered serious burns on his left hand when contents of a bottle of sulphuric acid was spilled while he was working in the school laboratory.

WARREN LEGION RAISES $59,221 IN CAMPAIGN

WARREN, Pa., May 11.—The American Legion's campaign for $50,000 for a new home for Chief Cornplanter Post netted $59,221. The Legion holds an option on a beautiful home facing the Allegheny River.

REFORMED CLASSIS TO MEET AT ELLWOOD CITY

ELLWOOD CITY, Pa., May 11.—The fifty-seventh annual meeting of Allegheny classis, Reformed church of the United States, will be held in Immanuel Reformed Church here next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

HIT-AND-RUN DRIVER PLOWS INTO ICE WAGON

A hit-and-run driver plower into a wagon of the Consolidated Ice Company on the Manchester Bridge early today and plowed right out again. Arthur McClelland, 25, of 949 Beach avenue, driver of the wagon, suffered minor injuries, Allegheny Hospital reported.

TWO GIRLS ARE INDICTED IN MAIL-MARRIAGE PLOT

PROPOSALS HELD FRAUD BAIT

Two girls who are alleged to have offered themselves for marriage and to have tried to obtain money from prospective husbands were indicted yesterday by the United States grand jury on charges of scheming to defraud.

Both Helen Currykowski and Kathryn Bokanovich, alias Kitty Buckley, were held on seven counts of attempting to obtain money from men on pleas sent out from Jeannette.

The girls were said to have sent letters to men in which the Bokanovich girl was represented as desiring to get married. She sought a husband who would help her operate a mine, it is charged, and to pay money due on the mine and on her home.

The indictment states that the girls asked the men to send money to prepare for the wedding and that all the statements made by the girls in their offers were false.

PHILA. CO. VETERANS TO HOLD MEMORIAL SUNDAY

The first memorial service for deceased members of the Veterans' Association of the Philadelphia Company will be held at 2:30 p. m. Sunday in the Davis Theater. Father James R. 200 ENTER HOMESTEAD DANCE MARATHON

More than 100 couples have entered the Homestead dance marathon contest which is to start at midnight on Sunday, May 20, in the Stahl Dance Garden, Homestead. On Saturday the contestants will parade in automobiles through Pittsburgh and Homestead.

TWO MORE SMALLPOX CASES IN MINE TOWN

MOUNDSVILLE, W. Va., May 11—Two additional cases of smallpox yesterday developed in McKeffery, mining settlement, near this city, according to county health department reports. Three cases have appeared in three days in the town and the county has taken steps to vaccinate every person in town.

ASKS DIVORCE FROM OHIO COAL OPERATOR

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, O., May 11.—Mrs. Mary Elkin yesterday filed suit for divorce from her husband, Herman Elkin, coal operator, mysteriously missing for a month. He had been receiver for the Belmont Collieries Company, but a successor was named after he disappeared. Desertion is basis of the suit.

M'LEOD TO GO TO POSITION ON COAST

The Rev. Dr. Murdoch McLeod, associate pastor of the Shadyside Presbyterian Church, has declined the pastorate of Central Presbyterian Church, Des Moines, Ia., a church with 1,400 members, of which he was pastor 20 years ago, stating that he has accepted the secretaryship of the Pacific Coast district of the Presbyterian Board of Education, with headquarters in San Francisco. Although he has not yet resigned his office at the Shadyside church, he plans to leave Pittsburgh in time to assume his duties on the coast by September 1.

After leaving Des Moines, Dr. McLeod held pastorates in Tacoma, Wash., and Minneapolis, Minn., and was connected with the Presbyterian Board of Education in Chicago before coming to Pittsburgh.

WOMAN DUPED, ARREST MAN

Harry Moran, alias Bennie Morgan, who, it is alleged, duped a woman into marriage, then decamped with her savings is under arrest in Erie, Inspector of Detectives Clyde Ideburn was notified yesterday.

Moran, with a wife and four children at 1021 Ivanhoe street, is alleged to have married Eride Toffalori, 30, of 308 Sampson way, April 20. He disappeared last week taking $500 belonging to the woman, she told police. She later learned he had a wife and family.

Inspector Ideburn said the Toffalori woman is only one of four or five women similarly tricked. Detectives were sent to Erie to bring Moran back. He faces charges of bigamy and larceny.

TANK INQUIRY REQUESTED

An immediate investigation of the property and personal damage caused by the bursting of the 200,000-gallon water tank in the Fineview district was asked by Councilman James F. Malone of Director of Public Works Edward G. Lang and City Solicitor Charles Waldschmidt.

The purpose of the investigation, Malone explained, is to provide immediate relief in cases where it is necessary. The new reservoir to replace the tanks in the district is under construction and will be completed within a few months.

NAVY MAY SEND LOS ANGELES TO RACES

The Los Angeles, biggest dirigible in the United States, may fly to Pittsburgh for the national balloon races at Bettis Field, McKeesport, on Memorial Day, according to an announcement at headquarters of the National Aeronautical Association in William Penn Hotel.

It was revealed that negotiations have been started with Commander Fulton, of the Bureau of Aeronautics in the Navy Department at Washington, and other government officials to bring the giant airship here for the balloon derby. One of the Los Angeles' officers is Lieut. Bertram J. Rodgers of Pittsburgh.

D. Barr Peat, manager of Bettis Field and one of the race officials, expressed confidence that the Los Angeles would be one of the attractions at the McKeesport flying field. Peat pointed out that the giant ship has usually flown to the scene of the annual balloon races in past years and requires only one inducement—a sunny smile from the weather man.

POOR FUND TO BE INVESTED

The J. W. Hainlman fund, to provide for the poor of Pittsburgh, will be invested in bonds in accordance with the provision of the will, it was announced today at the Mayor's office. The fund, originally $10,000, has been increased to $12,000. The board administering it has organized as follows: Chairman, Mayor Charles H. Kline; vice chairman, Councilman James F. Malone; secretary, Controller John H. Henderson; treasurer, City Treasurer Wallace Borland.

ORDER ISSUED FOR GUDE DISSOLUTION

Judge Josiah Cohen, of Common Pleas Court, made a preliminary order, on application of Attorney A. P. Weitzel, for the dissolution of the O. J. Gude Company. The same jurist signed a decree dissolving the Highland Development Company on application of Attorney John C. Sheriff.

MILLVALE MAN'S CATARRH RELIEVED

Glad He Got Ten Herbs, As It Also Benefited Stomach, Nerves and Bowels.

"Ten Herbs gave me great relief from catarrh and its awful head noises," was the statement of Mr. Thomas Shull, 269 Grant Avenue, Millvale, Pa., (near Pittsburgh), to the Ten Herbs Man, who is at May's Main Store, 529 Liberty Avenue.

MR. THOMAS SHULL

Pittsburgh, where he is daily demonstrating this great natural medicine. "Since taking your preparation, my head is clear in the morning," continued Mr. Shull, who is 62 years of age, and is employed as a watchman. "Never before in my life have I given a testimonial for a medicine, but Ten Herbs gave me such fine results that I do not hesitate to publicly recommend it.

"Before taking Ten Herbs, I suffered badly with catarrh, and there was a ringing and roaring noise in my head that became terrible at times. At night the mucus from the catarrh would clog up my head and throat, and I would have to cough and spit for ten or fifteen minutes in the morning before I could get it cleared out.

"I had stomach trouble, and my appetite was poor. Food did not digest right. No matter how careful I was about what I ate, gas formed in my stomach and bloated me badly. I was also troubled with chronic constipation and took a lot of physics. I was nervous and could not sleep properly. In the morning I would feel so fagged out that I could hardly keep going.

"I am mighty glad that I tried Ten Herbs, as it improved me wonderfully. I have a good appetite now, and can eat almost anything without bad after-effects, such as gas, bloating and heartburn. My bowels are as regular as can be. My nerves are stronger. I sleep soundly and arise in the morning with plenty of energy, ambition and courage. I have the utmost confidence in Ten Herbs, and am going to continue using it for awhile."

The Ten Herbs Man is at May's Main Store, 529 Liberty Avenue, Pittsburgh, where he is daily meeting the public and explaining the merits of this medicine. He will be glad to tell you how to take it to get the best results. Free sample given.

A PALINDROME is a line or a phrase that reads the same backward as forward. A famous one is what Adam might have said when he introduced himself to Eve—"Madam, I'm Adam!"

MATCH YOUR MOODS

Drawn By Nell Brinkley

"Here You Are, Ladies—A Mode for Every Mood"

ONLY an artist of one kind or another is supposed to have temperament. But if by temperament is meant "a variety of moods," then every girl, artist or no, has a private little gamut all her own. All the difference lies in the length of the keyboards that she plays upon. One young lady flares up and down a full-octaved concert-grand in the course of a day. Another amiable miss has the range of a baby girl's toy tinkler with its eight humble notes. And these eight moods do her for life. And though you wouldn't say that amounted to the tantrums, temperamental fits or vagaries, still they are MOODS.

Dan Cupid, who knows this, with Spring chapeaux on his mind just now and girls on his mind ALL OF THE TIME, says that demoiselles should match their hats to their moods. They glimpse a charming face in the mirror and sigh, and say, "Why is it I do not look right in this little lid, as Gloriette does?" If she feels vampish and has on an ingenue bonnet, and is trying to fit the bonnet, the result is zero. And all the male hearts go whole! Love says, if you feel flirtatious, choose you the hat that is so, too; a cocky little hat that veils one eye and one ear and has a bow like a bunny's ear. If you feel mysterious and dreamy, pull a dark hat low, concealing, secret. If you feel simple and childish, then the hat turned back, the forehead showing, letting the whole world and the sun see wondering eyes, is the thing.

The only trouble with this very charming and highly devastating system, and one where Ole Dan knows it is going to bring hectic moments, is that young husbands know that A HAT A MOOD is expensive. And girls without husbands know it, too!

If Daniel Cupid was a milliner all the girls would get hats free! For, wistfully, he believes with some kindly old French writers that youthful beauty deserves some beautiful things, free, as the world's gift.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

Watch the Effect of Feeding on Babies

UNLESS the mother watches the baby carefully the bowels are likely to become costive. This tendency is a common symptom in young infants.

There are many causes, of course, but almost every one of them relates to the feeding. Faults in eating are responsible. Giving too much sugar is one thing.

DR. COPELAND

In making the formula for bottle feeding a certain quantity of sugar is added to the mixture. This must be carefully controlled. The amount must be regulated according to the age of the infant.

It is a very bad practice to give too much sugar. And under no circumstances should sweetened water be given in place of plain bottled water.

The other day a charming woman whom I know very well, wrote to ask me if it is a good practice to give a baby sweetened water every day. There is but one answer to this—No!

Sugar and candy are not for babies and young children. Lime starvation is the penalty a child pays for being fed candy. It destroys the appetite for milk and, in consequence, there is not enough lime to supply the increasing need of that important mineral. Growth will be stunted and the teeth robbed of the necessary lime. By no means feed the young child candy.

It is a great mistake to create an appetite for sweets by giving the infant sweetened water. It develops an unnatural and improper appetite.

Too much sugar is such a common cause for constipation in infants that it should be thought of at once if the symptom is met. This is true, too, of giving too much fat. It may be necessary to take away all cream or top milk. For a while it will be wise to give plain milk, with the usual proportions of the other ingredients of the mixture.

Some baby foods are bought and mixed without milk. If constipation develops after their use it will probably be necessary to turn to milk and water mixtures.

Orange juice added to the baby's diet may overcome the constipation. This is true, too, of strained cooked tomato juice.

If constipation is associated with chronic vomiting, it may be set down as due to the same cause. You need expert advice given by your doctor after a careful examination of the baby. Take no chances and, above all else, do no experimenting of your own. Babies must not be trifled with even by a loving parent.

Your doctor will mention the value of gelatin as an addition to the feedings if there is a tendency to constipation. Sometimes there is a tendency for the milk to form large and indigestive curds in the stomach. The addition of gelatin prevents this unfortunate state of affairs. A level teaspoonful of the right sort of gelatin to a feeding will help at lot.

Meditations of a Married Woman

By HELEN ROWLAND

HAVE A HEART!

THE care of the heart is one of the most vital and important things in life.

When your heart hardens or "goes dead," either emotionally or physically, you are ready for the undertaker.

• • •

Keeping the heart tender and alive and responsive is the primary secret of keeping young. It is the whole foundation of youth-extension; and what we are all really seeking is not so much life-extension as "youth-extension."

HELEN ROWLAND

When your heart can no longer beat high with hope, with love, with excitement, with enthusiasm, or just with the joy of living, you might as well pick out your tombstone, plant the ivy and the lilies and settle down to gray old age. For you are beginning to die "at the top."

• • •

A man is not old when his hair turns gray and he gets wrinkles in his cheeks, but when his hopes and enthusiasms turn gray and he gets wrinkles on the heart.

• • •

In these days when it is considered smart to be hardboiled and skeptical and cynical hearts are very much out of date. They are supposed to be found only in morons and novels and on paper valentines.

• • •

We talk a lot about "self-expression," but any expression of sentiment or emotion or spontaneous enthusiasm is regarded as naive and unsophisticated. We are deliberately choking back the fountain of youth in the unholy fear of making fools of ourselves.

• • •

Next to chewing gum there is nothing that sticks to you quite so persistently as a reputation for having made a fool of yourself. But not half so many of a man's follies are due to a soft heart as are due to a soft head.

• • •

When a woman in her forties allows a boy in his twenties to make a fool and a spectacle of her she fancies that it is because she's so soft hearted and full of sentiment.

But it is not! It is because she's so soft HEADED and full of vanity.

When a middle-aged man who ought to have reached years of discretion allows a little gold digger to mulct him or drag him into a breach-of-promise suit he imagines that it is because he has such a big, trusting heart.

But it's not. It's because he has such a big overgrown EGO and such a tiny half-portion of common sense.

• • •

If you can keep your head hard and cool and your heart soft and warm you will get about everything out of this life that is worth having, from love to eternal youth.

• • •

Whether the heart is an organ, a muscle, or an emotional machine, keeping it healthy, young, tender and glowing is the chief business of life! Have a heart!

FOR THE LOVELORN

Lonesome

DEAR MISS GALE:

"To have loved and lost is better than not to have loved at all." How can that possibly be true when all you have left is heartaches and bitterness? To see someone that you dearly love, but who no longer cares for you, lavish affection and love on someone else. Since we parted, he has snubbed me on different occasions, and now when we happen to meet, he shows more interest. Now my question is, how shall I greet him when we happen to meet, for I love him heart and soul and just weaken at the sight of him. I don't want him to feel sorry for me and yet I don't want to do anything that I may regret, so please advise me? There is a young man that attracts me, he has had an affair similar to mine. He has taken me out several time, yet he never makes any future dates, except when we happen to meet. Is it my place to invite him to call again, since I know how to reach me if he cares to do so. He always seems interested when we are together. Please let me have your advice for I want to do the right thing, and I do get awfully lonesome for someone who cares. LONESOME.

Of course it is heartbreaking to meet this man now, my dear, but if you keep your dignity and just smile and speak to him in a friendly fashion, he will not feel sorry for you. Rather, he will admire you. Invite the other man to call but let him arrange the time.

Sad Heart

DEAR MISS GALE:

You have given others excellent advice, and perhaps you can help me. I was married when I was 17. I know you will say I was too young, but I loved the man I married. We lived happy for a time, then he got out of work and began running around. He then got a job for a short time, but when he was through with that, instead of giving me a little money for our future hope (the baby), he said he was leaving, and went west. He first told me he was going to New York state, but went about six times as far west. He never gave me a cent when our baby came. That did not seem to stir him in the least. But our baby child only lived a short time. After she died he got very angry with me. But still I received no money or no credit for what I had gone through. He then stopped writing. I have written six letters, but received no answer. He has been gone eight months. I received $5 for my birthday and $5 for Christmas, with just a card signed, as though he was a stranger. His people are thinking of him coming home. What shall I do, go back to him, or what?

SAD HEART.

Don't you think you would be rather foolish to go back to such a completely heartless husband? He doesn't care for you or he could not treat you as he does. Stand on your own feet, my dear.

Suffered 8 Years With Eczema

After Other Remedies Failed, Ends Skin Trouble Quickly This Simple Way.

"You may be interested to know that for about 8 years I was suffering with a skin trouble I called Eczema. It affected me in two different parts of my body. A short time ago I noticed your ad in a newspaper for Peterson's Ointment. I purchased a box. I must add that I have tried almost every known remedy and failed. I will proudly admit that your remedy has proven the best and has not been half used up yet."—Ray O. Nesbet, Augusta, Me.

Other remedies may fail, but the success of Peterson's Ointment is so certain that druggists all over America are glad to recommend it for eczema, pimples, acne, ulcers and all skin eruptions—35 cents a box—at your druggist.

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE

Saturday, May 12

THE dominant planetary forces for this day may not be considered entirely benefic, especially for those in employment, who are under adverse rule, and may have to labor to keep their positions. Patience and application, as well as trustworthiness, may win the day, but not irritability, impetuosity, nor yet trickery or underhand methods. Minor change is probable.

Those whose birthday it is are confronted by a year calling for patience, steadfastness, intelligence and prudence in order to hold the ground, either in business or employment. Beware crafty and underhand moves and irritability.

A child born on this day should be given excellent training in perseverance, prudence and steadfastness if it is to make a success of its life.

SEA FLIERS IN CHICAGO

BREMEN'S CREW BATTLES FOG IN HOP

CHICAGO, May 11.—After a tempestuous voyage from Philadelphia, similar in a minor degree to the uncertainties of their famous trans-Atlantic hop, the brave crew of the good ship Bremen—Von Huenefeld, Fitzmaurice and Koehl—were safe today in the arms of Chicago.

The famous trio came to earth here last evening—one hour and a half late—after battling fog and rain that centered over Ohio. In the twilight drizzle that fell over Chicago, the fliers lost their bearings and landed at the air mail field in Maywood, West Side suburb, while thousands of patient spectators stood in the rain at Chicago municipal airport awaiting their arrival.

A small boy who happened to be near the Maywood field when the huge Junkers F-13, sister ship of the Bremen, came to earth, recognized the fliers and directed them to Chicago's municipal airport.

"FOLLOW THE TRACKS!"

"Just follow the tracks and you can't miss," smiled the freckled-faced welcoming committee, one John Collins. The fliers shook hands with the boy, climbed back into their plane and "followed the tracks" to the municipal airport.

A few minutes later—at 5:57 p. m., to be exact—they glided to a graceful landing. The crowd, pent up from hours of anxious waiting, literally went wild. Hats went into the air, flashlights boomed, and human voices vied with the screaming of automobile sirens. Police lines broke and the fliers were all but mobbed by the stampeding crowd.

Richard Blythe, business representative for the aviators, was first to appear. He was mistaken for Maj. Fitzmaurice.

"Fitz! Fitz! Fitz!" roared the crowd.

Blythe was so embarrassed he retreated to the cabin.

A moment later a head that was familiar to all peeked out of the cabin door. A glinting monacle above a broad grin revealed the countenance of Baron Guenther Von Huenefeld. He stepped to the ground and was met by George F. Getz, chairman of the official welcoming committee, "Fitz," and Capt. Koehl followed.

RUSHED TO HOTEL

The fliers, smiling and saluting, were directed to the rear seat of a large automobile, in the front of which were Mayor William Hale Thompson and Mr. Getz. The party whirled in triumph through the crowds to the Steven's Hotel.

There were no official functions last night, the fliers being allowed one night of rest to prepare for the gruelling round of entertainment in store today and tomorrow.

A mammoth parade will be the feature of today's celebration, from the standpoint of the "man in the street." It will probably be the average citizen's only chance to get a "close-up" of the world famous hero triumvirate.

Numerous semi-private and official affairs, interspersed with sight-seeing trips over the city, will complete the entertainment docket. The fliers will leave here Monday to continue their tour of American and Canadian cities.

TRADER HORN

THE GREATEST ADVENTURE STORY OF MODERN TIMES

How Horn Saved Cecil Rhodes From Crocodiles

Hand to Hand Fight With Oshebas, Horn Killing One Under Water

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

As a trader on the Ivory Coast of Africa when a boy, 50 years ago, Trader Horn becomes friendly with cannibal tribes and was initiated into their societies. He lived, hunted and fought with them. Discovering that the White Goddess of the Isogas was the daughter of an Englishman of aristocratic family, he resolved to rescue her from the josh house and to abstract a great ruby by substituting an imitation. He plunged into wildest Africa on Explorer De Brazza's trail. He vividly recites the weird customs of the natives.

Planning for Rescue of Nina

By ALFRED ALOYSIUS HORN

Edited by ETHELREDA LEWIS.

CHAPTER XXVII.

I TOOK great pains in charting and sounding as I found after giving all routes due consideration that the only one of any use from a commercial point of view was the great Ivory track, as I had found an island called Isange the key to this big road.

ALFRED A. HORN

This island was situated about 20 miles west of Accota and commanded the river as well as the high road to the interior of the most unknown portion of Equatorial Africa and ran through the country inhabited by the Oshebas and the wild tribes further in the interior, and was the one most used at this time by the savage ivory hunters.

As the first thunder and rain of the season had now commenced I turned down stream so as to be ready to pilot up from the river mouth any of our company's steamers which happened to come along. I had had a splendid trip and was now anxious to return and report my doings. The voyage down the river was easy going.

As there was no driftwood for a fire along the sand banks we pulled out early after taking our morning trot and dip, but as we all felt hungry about 9 o'clock we intended to pick out a shady spot on the river bank near a large spreading tree where we could breakfast in the shade.

The canoe was paddled inshore, but before we could tie up we were fired upon by a band of Oshebas at short range, whilst I received a bad wound on the wrist from a spear thrown from ambush.

Hand-to-Hand Fight

We were completely taken by surprise and several of my boys received gunshot wounds. With a bound the Camma boys, rifle in hand, reached the bank and commenced firing. I followed suit, but was pounced upon by two Oshebas. The first one I got with a revolver shot whilst the other one thrust his gun forward which I grabbed as it went off but I had thrust it aside. I then jumped back and fired again but my trigger refused to move being caught by a few grains of coarse sand I had picked up getting ashore with my unwounded hand holding my shooter.

He was a tall, quick, lithe fellow, and throwing my gun at him and hitting him squarely on the nose, which I badly split, he fell, but was up in an instant and made to draw his dagger which was barbed near the handle, and this I saw was caught by a small thong. I was now between him and the river and with one tremendous leap he jumped into the water. I dived after him with my drawn hunting knife and as the hole we were in was deep I dived under him.

While he was battling on top I got right under him and stabbed him repeatedly with my hunting knife until he settled. I then pulled him out on the sand bank, but he was all in. I was weak as I had two bad wounds, the last one had gone through my left hand and was a bad shot wound and had nearly torn my thumb off.

I soon commenced to weaken through loss of blood. Presently Iwollo returned, and seeing my predicament came off with the small medicine chest and brandy flask and soon commenced to tie my arm tight with the bandages whilst the brandy revived me.

Six Cannibals Dead

And now the boys returned with several Osheba guns and trophies, as they had followed the Oshebas up and killed four outright whilst my long one and his mate on the bank made six besides several they had wounded. There were six of my boys wounded by gun shot fire but no one had got as bad a dose as I had.

The canoe was brought over and after another wet and being patched up by Iwollo's medicine or by Friars' balsam we pulled down stream, having recovered my six-shooter and likewise the two Osheba guns. We now kept the other bank of the river as many a trader or poor canoe boy had been shot by these warlike cannibals.

We arrived that afternoon at the Okelly village where my gorilla lay buried and were well received by all, especially as we had again defeated their enemies, the Oshebas. The old chief could not do too much for me and I was soon being treated by Iwollo.

I was still bleeding, but he sewed up my long spear wound with nine stitches whilst everyone was busy turning over old wood and catching black crickets, the white of which was squeezed from their bodies and was used for packing up bad wounds after being well washed with very hot water and piled over for heat with the lcundo or cotton from the underbark of a tree.

One Thumb Short

The process was repeated three or four times a day and after a long time closed up and gradually grew together, but the thumb never grew and as I was young I have one thumb shorter than the other.

I left the gorilla with the old chief as I was sure of returning and this greatly pleased him.

On arriving at Apaques we were more than well received and we all felt we had reached home, sweet home. The chief laughed heartily when he cast eyes on the patched up lot, but was highly pleased when I told him of the beautiful country full of game which the Okotas had evacuated on account of the marauding Oshebas. This he said he would see became their property as he had a pull on the paramount chief at Engella and this would be a fine country for his people who were increasing rapidly. And it must be taken from these cannibals if he had to go there himself and drive them away.

In any case he said these people

SUICIDE OVER DEAD FLIER

Malta Knights In Grand Meeting

FROM DERRY

Three thousand Knights of Malta and their ladies, with 10 bands, marched in Greensburg at the grand commandery session. Here is the degree team, Clearmont Commandery No. 395, Derry, Pa.

SISTERHOOD

The ladies above, so attractively garbed in black and white, are the Mount Odessa Sisterhood, Dames of Malta, Greensburg. In the elections, C. J. Schmidt, Pittsburgh, was chosen grand generalissimo, and Mrs. Schmidt was made president of the Red Bead Society, Dames of Malta.

NOTABES IN LODGE

$250,000 HOOVER'S LIMIT

WASHINGTON, May 11. — (AP.) — An estimate of "less than $250,000" for the Hoover pre-convention campaign was made before the Senate investigating committee today by James W. Good, directing head of the Hoover-for-President organization.

He considered this modest, he said.

The receipts of the Washington headquarters were given as $50,000 and the expenditures $42,632.16. Reports from various campaign managers showed state expenditures ranging from $30 in Rhode Island up to "$35,000 or $40,000" in Indiana, approximately $40,000 in Ohio, and around $35,000 in New York.

Eisel Ford was the largest contributor shown in the report for the Washington headquarters, with a gift of $5,000. Julius Rosenwald, of Chicago was next with $3,500. When the funds run low, he said, "reputable men" would be asked for more.

"What have been the expenditures in New Hampshire, Missouri, Maine and Florida?" asked Senator Steiwer.

"I do not think that expenditures in those states will even approach $10,000," Good replied.

WINKS—MISTRIAL

MRS. M. O. HERBERT

Mrs. Myrtle O. Herbert, married and a blonde, co-defendant with her husband, mind you, in a criminal charge of illegal sale and possession of liquor in Washington (D. C.) courts, met the eye of a "gay" juror as she sat in the courtroom. Mrs. Herbert was "gay," too. Judge Robert E. Matingly declared mistrial, dismissed the jury and withheld the gay juror's name when attorneys called his attention to the flirtation.

ENDS LIFE FOR LOVE OF PILOT

NEW YORK, May 11.—(AP.)—Leaving a farewell note reading "My sweetheart was killed in an aviation accident Friday and I cannot possibly live without him," Mrs. Jean Lebrun, divorcee and vaudeville actress, formerly of Nashville, Tenn., yesterday committed suicide with gas, in her apartment.

Pictures of Leonard W. Bonney, veteran pilot who fell to his death last Friday at Curtiss Field in experimental flight in a strange wing-flapping plane of his own design, were found in the apartment, together with newspaper clippings telling of his activities and his death.

The farewell note was addressed to Dr. H. N. Tigert of Nashville. Police believed Mrs. Lebrun was a sister of Dr. J. J. Tigert, United States commissioner of education in Washington. She was 39.

GAS TURNED ON

Her body was found by her landlady in a bath room which had been locked, cracks and keyholes were stuffed and gas lines open.

A loaded pistol was found on the table of the living room of the West Eighty-eighth street apartment, and the floor was strewn with cartridges. In one of the notes, she said: "I can't make this d— pistol work."

Mrs. Anne Gunther, the landlady and an old friend of the actress, said she had been living at the house about two weeks. She had been despondent for several days, and last night Mrs. Gunther heard muffled sobs in the apartment.

Dr. Irving Rothstein, a dentist, said he and Mrs. Lebrun had been good friends for some time. She had talked freely with him of her personal affairs, he said, telling him that she was madly in love with a famous aviator who was at work on a remarkable invention.

AIRMAN MARRIED

She was heartbroken, however, she told the dentist, because the aviator was married. She never told him the flier's name, the dentist said.

Some years ago, Dr. Rothstein said, Mrs. Lebrun married an elderly physician named Cooper in Denver, Col., later divorcing him and marrying again. A daughter, now 10 years old, was born of the first marriage, he said.

Mrs. Lebrun came to New York from Florida, in April, where she said she had been playing in vaudeville and entertaining at hotels.

On the back of a photograph of the woman which was found in the apartment was written "Jean Lebrun, prima donna—Levar's Adroit Revue." A booking agent's name was also on the picture.

SIDEWALKS OF PITTSBURGH

BY HAVEY J. BOYLE

THE papers say that three local boys, Milt Crandall, John Hernon and Harry Grelle are to go to New York to collaborate with that far-famed impressario of divers affairs, George L. (Tex) Richard. The three local boys, after having scored one of the biggest entertainment promotion successes in the history of the city—the marathon dance—are now to wend their way to Gotham to show the big city folks how to stage a mammoth marathon.

ASSUMING that the announcement is not premature, and that there will be no slip between the cup and the lip, M. Crandall's advent into New York here vindicates, in a small way, this observer's judgment of his rare ability to whet the public appetite for whatever dainty in the way of promotion he has on tap.

NEVER a newspaperman, in the sense of having worked in an editorial office, M. Crandall has a nose for spectacular news, an ear as to what the public likes, and an eye for just the right mixture of aggressiveness and reserve. M. Crandall promotes with tongue in cheek and with rare enthusiasm. The New York newspaper boys will find a bit of inventive originality, which, in the end, may cause our sidewalks to lose M. Crandall. He'll probably wind up owning a circus or as the proprietor of the world's greatest something or other.

IN Mr. Rickard, M. Crandall will meet a naive gentleman who, in his middle-ageship, now seems as guileless as a child, in spite of previous experiences as proprietor of the Great Northern in the Klondike, where miners laid down pay-dust as tender for the whisky that came back over the bar; in spite of his having mixed these many years with miners of the West plains, adventurers in the Argentine, and white-collared gentry of New York, who, when they take a notion, summon the victim to the front stoop of his home to receive a bullet or two.

WE THUS speak almost too familiarly of Tex due to the fact that of a warm summer evening in the East it has been our pleasure to sit in a hotel room while the shirt-sleeved and brow-mopping Tex would reel off in his boyish way the fiction-like series of events that brought him from a provincial obscurity to an international figure.

* * *

THERE would be raps at the door and a succession of secretaries to announce that beyond the portal waited this gentleman and other, seeking a moment or so of Rickard's time, but once upon a favorite theme, Tex would let important matters wait awhile as he sped through certain of his manifold adventures.

* * *

M. CRANDALL, too, will meet in New York the newspaper boys, first-cousins of the boys he got to know so well in his Pittsburgh adventure. He will find that in New York, as in Pittsburgh, they murmur about the sins of the copy-desk, et cetera, et cetera, and that in New York, too, a fairish sort of quartet can be organized to sing: "Sweet Adeline." with the proper inspiration.

* * *

M. CRANDALL might start his New York venture by meeting our little cousins from New York, now here with the Giants, the right honorable Col. Bozeman Bulger, Frank O'Neill and others of the large school that follow in the wake of the whale, McGraw.

QUITE a bit of the journalistic cream is in New York and M. Crandal will find to his amazement that the creamier they are the less pretentious and ostentatious they are.

We trust herein there is not too much wistfulness from a local boy who spent a fruitful hour or so with the Bulgers, the Grahams, the Hannas who come our way from time to time from the great big city.

Will Says, Looks Like Purdue Has Failed Indiana

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., May 11.—When Indiana votes that "Jim" Watson would be a more competent man for President than "Herb" Hoover, there just ain't nothing you can say.

Will Rogers.

Mind you, Jim is a good fellow as far as politicians go, but I leave comment in the hands of George Ade, Kin Hubbard, Booth Tarkington and Jesse Andrews. Old Purdue, it looks like you have failed.

Yours, WILL.

PRUDENCE PENNY MENU

Menu for Sunday's Dinner

By PRUDENCE PENNY

Chicken Mexican
Boiled Rice
Corn Croquettes
Squash
Stuffed Peaches

CUT a chicken into small pieces. Saute a minced clove of garlic and a green pepper, cut in small pieces, in one tablespoonful of butter and two of olive oil. Add the chicken, sear well, and two cups of stewed tomatoes and a dozen stuffed olives cut in slices. Cover closely and simmer an hour and a half to two hours, depending on the age of the chicken.

ADD a teaspoonful of salt to two quarts of boiling water and while boiling furiously sift in a cup of rice. Let boil uncovered for 25 minutes, drain and let steam in the strainer over boiling water for five minutes, and serve.

For corn croquettes blend two tablespoonfuls of butter with two tablespoonfuls of flour and stir in one cup of milk; cook until thick. Add one can of corn, one-half teaspoonful of sugar, one-half teaspoonful of salt and the yolks of two eggs. Stir over the fire till it comes to a boil. Set aside to cool, when cold form into croquettes, dip in the beaten egg whites, then into bread crumbs and fry in deep fat.

GET either the green Italian squash or the white squash. Slice thin, put in pan with only a few tablespoonfuls of water, as the squash is quite watery. Add two tablespoonfuls of butter. Cook covered until tender, about 15 minutes.

For the stuffed peaches, take canned ones and make a mixture of chopped nut meats and jam of any kind—strawberry would be nice. Fill the hollows of the peach halves. Make a nest of whipped cream on rounds of sponge cake, place the stuffed peach on the nest and serve.

Pears could be served this way also. Prepare the fruit and chill thoroughly, then combine with the cake and cream just before serving.

LAMB STEW ITALIAN — For lamb stew Italian mince, a slice of bacon, a clove of garlic, a small onion and half a green pepper, add a tablespoonful of olive oil and saute together in the bottom of the stewing kettle for 10 minutes. Add two pounds of breast of lamb, stir until seared, then add one cup of water.

Cover closely and cook for one hour. Add a teaspoonful of salt, a couple of bunches of baby carrots and a cup of stewed tomatoes, cover again and watch carefully that it does not burn. Remove cover and stir often. When meat is done and carrots tender serve.

MACARONI LOAF — One and one-half cups macaroni, two tablespoons chopped peppers, two cups bread crumbs, two tablespoons chopped parsley, two teaspoons salt, one and one-half cups grated cheese, one-quarter cup butter, six eggs, two cups milk, two teaspoons onion juice and one teaspoon Blue Ribbon Malt Extract (hop flavored). Cook the macaroni in boiling salted water until tender; drain. Blend the Blue Ribbon Malt Extract, hop flavored, the melted butter, salt and milk together. Add the slightly beaten eggs, mix well; add cheese. Pour over the chopped parsley, green peppers and bread crumbs. Mix all together into a loaf. Bake in a buttered casserole in a pan of hot water (like custard) one-half hour to three-quarters of an hour in a slow oven. Serve with tomato sauce.

WHAT'S ON THE AIR

THE Treble Clef Girls' Club of 28 voices from Bethany College will present a program in the Fort Pitt studio of KDKA at 10 o'clock tonight. The girls' chorus will sing the last number of the Tschaikowski-Bornschein King Nuteracker Suite, "The Waltz of the Flowers." So far as is known, it will be the first public vocal presentation of the suite or part of it. J. C. Moos will direct the chorus.

Another local radio program will be Maude Ingersoll's Musical Pictures to be heard over WCAE at 7 o'clock. Thelma Kister, soprano, and Byron Wade, tenor, will be featured. Selections to be offered will include "The Valley of Laughter," "The Enchanted Glade," and "Princess Pat."

Andrew Tombes, Ziegfeld Follies' star, returns to the air tonight as a feature of the La Palina Smoker, a Columbia Chain program which will be heard over WJAS at 10 o'clock.

"Caprice," by Paganini, who was such a technician on the violin that his superstitious countrymen attributed his skill to a close fellowship with the devil, will be played by Godfrey Ludlow, concert violinist, at 8 o'clock. This is one of the Blue Network programs which will be heard over KDKA. A half hour earlier, over the same station, Bob Sherwood, circus clown for more than a half century, again will be heard in the Dixie Circus program.

In the Wrigley review at 9 o'clock, another network feature to be on the air through KDKA, a male quartet will sing "Riding to Glory," "Happy-Go-Lucky Lane" and "Blue Danube."

Sascha Fidelman, violinist, playing two solos, will be the guest artist of the Cities Service hour to be heard over the Red Network, including WCAE, at 8 o'clock. Orchestra music will include selections from the light opera, "Pinafore," and a group from Dubussy's "Petite Suite." Selections to be included in the Whittall Anglo-Persians broadcast over WCAE and associated stations at 9 oclock will bring radio listeners a graphic reminder of pre-war days in Vienna. Strauss "Wine, Women and Song" and Kreisler's "Caprice Viernois" will be featured. A Mother's Day tribute will be presented during the Palmolive hour, another network event to be offered through WCAE at 10 o'clock. Paul Oliver, tenor, will sing "Little Mother of Mine." Olive Palmer will be heard in several numbers, including "Indian Love Call" and "Carry Me Back to Old Virginny."

The new RADIOLA 18

RCA RADIOLA 18—In solid mahogany cabinet, walnut finish. Operates from electric light circuit—110 volt, 60 cycle, A.C. Uses high-power Radiotron rectifier and 6 alternating current Radiotrons. Special RCA electrically-lighted tuning dial. $115 (less Radiotrons)

The great public demand for RCA alternating current Radiolas made possible the production of a still finer instrument at a lower price.

In accordance with the well-known RCA policy, improvements in design and economies in manufacture are simultaneously passed on to the public.

The new Radiola 18 is still finer in performance and appearance than the wonderful "17," the pioneer of the new era of simplified operation from the house current.

The unequalled engineering and manufacturing resources of RCA, General Electric and Westinghouse make possible such a fine instrument at such a low price.

Now, at a very moderate cost, you can replace your old radio set with a simplified, perfected Radiola that operates from your electric light circuit.

Ask the RCA Authorized Dealer about the RCA Time Payment Plan.

The famous RCA Loudspeaker 100A $35.00 specially designed to get the finest performance from Radiolas must keep their own side of the river and must never be allowed his side as they were a dangerous lot and they would surely cause great trouble if they were allowed to get a strong foothold. And this he would see to at once and would send one of his sub chiefs at once to Engella on that business.

(This chapter completed, Trader Horn with a true story teller's flair remarks to Mrs. Lewis that the best of his narrative is yet to be written.)

Back to Nina

"I shall be getting back to the love-interest soon. If so it could be called—my old schoolfellow coming thousands of miles to have a look at an unfortunate English girl. Adventure. That's what he liked. 'Tis the one thing money can help you to.

"Excuse me if I bring forward my idea that this account of what happened to Nina T—— has to be drawn out and embellished a little with my experiences as a trader. The one'll help the other.

"I think I told you how I got the ruby away. I've often wondered what that white crystal was. Too big for any diamond. Fire and water, the priests told me. Blood and spirit. Aye, a poetic people. 'Tis only towns such as this where you'll not find poetry. Even a cannibal has it as a gift from Nature. What is poetry but the leavings of superstition If it's a cannibal we say he's superstitious to talk about blood and spirit. If it's a Christian same as you or me it's got to be poetry.

"Lord Tennyson was a poet but there's nothing very different in his make-up, come to fact, from those priests that were always pretending two stones were fire and water. Come another thousand years and Nina's savage guardian'll be tossing off odes. Panegyrics for old college chums and so on.

Cecil Rhodes' Peril

"I'm told they've already got visiting cards on the Ivory Coast. However that may be for truth, I'd rather go through the sugar-cane rite with a savage than be handed his visiting card printed in Oxford or London. Egbo sees you through, else how would I be here today? Look at my thumb. Egbo cured it. That feller nearly got me that time. 'Twas the only time I enjoyed watching a man die. We were watching him and passing remarks about his broken nose. On the edge of the water he was lying.

"Aye, I swam under him and tapped his claret enough to fetch a whole bevy of crocs for a meal. A crocodile won't eat unless he smells blood. He always needs some appetiser before he'll trouble to eat. But a croc's a thorough pig when he gets you.

"Cecil Rhodes once ran a fair chance of being put on the shelf in a croc's pantry. I'd been making some prickly-pear brandy at the back of my store in Rhodesia and Rhodes came along for a bit of fishing with one of his friends, Colonel —— it was.

"They arrived in the forenoon and nothing would please them but they must take some of the new prickly-pear brandy. Said they wanted a novelty. They wouldn't listen to me when I said it'd treat 'em queer, not having matured. They took a good lot of it, and their lunch in a knapsack and my boy took 'em to the spot in the river where they'd find good fishing. 'Twas a place where a nice flat rock rose up about twenty feet from the bank. No more than a foot high and nice deep water all round. I thought no more about 'em until somewhere about half-past two, when my boy came rushing in and said if the Baases went on sleeping the crocodile would come.

"He'd taken a woman off that rock only a week before and she'd been wide awake, too, over her washing. I rode down to the spot to see what he meant, and there I saw Rhodes and the other feller fast asleep. Dead drunk they both were, and very red in the face. They might 'a got sunstroke lying out like that, let alone the crocodile. Full up of raw prickly-pear spirit as they were. They'd both left their lines in the water and a fish was caught and splashing about on one of 'em. They knew nothing about it.

Rhodes' Love of Novelty

"We got 'em lifted into the boat and I had 'em carried over to the back of my store and spread out a forage bed for them to sleep it off. I lay they never approached prickly-pear brandy again. Heads like cannon balls when they woke up. Sick, too.

"Rhodes was properly astonished when he found where he was. He wasn't a man who was often caught napping. But he was always a feller open to novelties. He could never keep his hands off a novelty, whether prickly-pear brandy or a lion with a wooden leg, same as he bought from Honest John. Like a lad in a toy shop, Rhodes.

"Honest John, the first Jew in Rhodesia. Him that was offered the half of Swaartbooi's kingdom if he'd sell him a wagonload of rifles. Over on the German-west border that was. A good shot, tho. He'd rather sell ivory than shoot it, and he'd rather shoot than be content to watch the fine apparition of Nature. The first Jew in Rhodesia, same as Joseph was first in Egypt. Joseph was objectionable to his brethren and following the custom of the country he was sold as a slave. The first in Israel to settle in a foreign country and then send for his relations to come and set up for themselves.

"Aye, a brave feller, Honest John. Sets off on a long trek into Tanganyika and takes one boy with him. He was prospecting, of course, but he came to grief with the natives and only managed to get away with his life.

"Turned up one day when Rhodes and Karl Peters were somewhere about. Karl Peters looked him all over and turned away without a good word.

Natural Men

"But Cecil Rhodes was of a different stamina. He loved a struggle and he loved fellers that could battle-out for themselves, Aye, he and Honest John had a similar make-up from the hand of Nature. Gave him 50 pounds out of his pocket to get a new rig out and started him with a store.

"Mind you, though, generous as he was, Rhodes was naught but a man. Susceptible to wine and women as they say, if you'll excuse me, Ma'am. Come to that what is any hero but a man. Wasn't Nelson a man, even in the midst of fame? Napoleon, too, was choicey about women. And given a feller starts out to conquer a piece of Africa, he'll gather up what comes in his way, whether my prickly-pear brandy or a chief's daughter. Aye, Always on the battle-out was Rhodes.

"He'd liked my job—all save and except that feller Sinclair. He'd 'a liked my job. Quite a lad when he came out first. But older than I was when I got this thumb shortened by a feller with filed teeth and so on. High cheek bones.

"Took me by surprise. Deceit makes a lad angry. And when you're angry you're strong. There's some things you remember. And one's the first feller you've had to kill. Aye, I wake up sometimes and think we're struggling in the water——

"But looking back over the panorama of my life, why, I think I've been merciful."

Mary Starts to Burn the Papers, Can Jerry Stop Her in Time?

MARY glanced at her wrist watch. "Get the damn thing out of here, then! Never mind about the drapes. I'm in a hurry—rotten hurry. Hell of a hurry. I'll ring for Bill and have him get it for you."

"I can handle it!"

"Make it pretty damn snappy—Jerry—pretty—damn snappy—" She went up the steps, Jerry behind her. She turned about once with a sweep of her arm that almost struck Jerry in the face. She said, gloating: "You wouldn't have the nerve! Poor fish like you let them get away with it!"

Jerry stood on a chair, slowly reaching for the picture. She thought in an agony: "What is she about? Where are they hidden? If I could only infuriate her into telling!"

She said, lifting the picture from the hook: "Of course, a girl can always shoot a man."

"And land herself a nice soft berth in the electric chair—or a cell for life."

"Or I could have gone to his office and torn up his work. He loves that better than life—anyway."

She turned about suddenly, saw Mary lift and drain another of those terrifying jolts of liquor—saw her draw in her lips. She answered with meticulous diction—conscious of each syllable: "Loves—that—better—than—life—doesn't he?"

"Oh, God!" thought Jerry, repelled by the tone and the look, "she means to do it—means to ruin him!"

Aloud—and stepping down carefully: "But there'd be the chance of getting arrested for burglary—there'd be all the ugly notoriety."

Mary was ringing a bell: a long, imperious ring. She was smiling. "Gwan—make it snappy—Jerr—"

And to the maid who came running up the steps: "Go now and tell Bill not to call for mother—to wait here for me. I'll be needing him."

"But your mother has 'phoned—she'll be waiting."

"Go down at once and tell Bill I want him. I wish him to report to me at once. Mother understands. And will wait!"

"Yes, Miss Pennings — right away."

Jerry tucked the picture under her arm—she steadied herself on a chair. Mary was going to do it now—was sending for Bill, the chauffeur. Whatever she did—she would do now.

She turned in a pale, fainting suspense. "So long, Mary—till tomorrow."

She flew down the steps—took a hasty backward glance—saw Mary returning to her room.

Thelma was gone to the garage to summon the chauffeur; the Filipino cook was in the kitchen.

Jerry went with a long, sneaking glide to the back hall. She thrust the picture in the closet.

And two moments later she was standing in the dark basement shoveling ashes into the smoldering fire of the furnace.

If Mary sent the plans down here, if she sent Bill down here to burn them, he would have to lay them down: have to go down that winding passage for fuel.

And in that moment—in that terrible, portentous moment—

She was almost withered with the flame of this suspense. There—the fire was out. She crept 10 feet distance and hid behind the old baby buggy.

She slipped off her shoes and waited.

It was dark here. She heard a sound. Her heart collapsed. Rain—it was raining outside.

It seemed to grow darker—frighteningly dark. Numberless terrors now came with chilly hands and touched her.

Suppose Mary would burn them in the upstairs grate? Suppose she should tear them to pieces in her own room—cut them up? But that would take so long—so mercilessly long.

Suppose she was driving away with Bill and would toss them in the ocean—weight them and toss them in the ocean?

They might be on the watch for Saxon—they might take him by surprise. Oh, God!—suppose they waited till midnight—stole out then in the dark. Or she might wrap them about her own body and escape in that way with them. Insane plans assaulted Jerry.

Then a door—the door to the basement surely. A step—the big lumbering step of the Negro chauffeur.

She listened with her heart—her mind—her ears.

Suddenly he was craning forward—moist with terror. Behind those heavy steps were others—light, swift—Mary's footsteps.

The heavy steps—then the light ones following—heavy—light—in a deadly, tragic rhythm.

Jerry pressed her forehead against the old musty wicker.

"Now—hurry—stir up the fire—a raging fire, Bill—" Mary's voice, Mary standing before the furnace.

Thud—something dropping with a thick, lumpy sound.

"Make it blaze, Bill—quick!"

CHAPTER LXXVII.

"JUST a moment, Miss Pennings, I'll get some wood."

"Thish ish paper, Bill. Tosh it in and light a match to it. Lemme shee it burn! Lemme shee it BLAZE!"

Jerry sank clammy hands against her cheeks. Two of them on guard. She hadn't dreamed of this—Mary coming down to this dank, close basement. Hadn't planned, and couldn't cope with it.

"You wait just a moment, Miss Pennings. That there's too 'mense a bundle to burn without a fire. You just wait here half a moment. I'll get some wood."

Shuffling of heavy feet down the passage.

Jerry crouched behind the baby buggy in this sloping, unexcavated area. And 10 feet from her, like a priestess of destruction, Mary leaned against the wall, her foot resting on the bundle of plans.

"Thash enuf, Bill—raging fire—quick!"

Crackling of wood in the furnace. Red spurt of flame. In the flash, Mary stood illumined, her face a greenish pallor, with the eyes dilated and fixed. She swept an uncertain hand across her mouth: "Gosh—s'awful hot down here—suffocating—get a move on, Bill!"

"Go up stairs, Miss Pennings. You go long now. Think I can't burn this old bundle of papers safe nuf for you?"

"Tosh 'em in! Tosh 'em all in at once, I shay!"

"Wait till that log gets a start."

"Pitch 'em in—too damn hot!"

And on a sudden the fire lighted a frightening picture—Bill stooping—the flash of a knife. The cord tying the plans ripped apart.

Mary leaned down. With a swift, panther-like gleam of triumph seized a handful of papers, flung them into the blaze.

Jerry rose. In the sickening panic of that moment, she rose swiftly. In a wild, primitive vengeance.

The flames wrapped about the papers. Mary reeled against the wall: "There—thash the way! Tosh 'em! All at once. Bill, tosh 'em all—in—quick!"

The negro stooped, rolled the huge bundle, lifted it.

With the madness of despair—the raging madness of defeat, Jerry flung herself against the baby buggy.

With her hands gripped to the old wooden handles and the high hood concealing her, she sent it plunging before her full against the half-crouched, unsuspecting negro.

He went sprawling head foremost. He lay perfectly still, the bundle of plans dropped in a wild disorder at his side.

Mary regarded the baby buggy with fixed, dilated eyes. Suddenly a scream—a shrill, terrified scream, shot through the narrow passage. "Jerr—! Whash—whash—" Mary went dwindling to the floor.

Jerry saw nothing but the papers before her; heeded nothing but the frightened, unconscious groans of the negro.

With one frenzied move she swept the plans together, rolled them in her coat, tying it about with the sleeves.

And as she did this, her lips moved, her brain lighted with the swiftness of her thought. Quick! Drag them—lift them. Race up the steps, dash through the hall and out before any one would know what happened; before the Negro, prostrate with terror, recovered.

She was suddenly galvanized with alarm. The maid rushing down the steps, and the Negro reaching out a hand, making a blundering effort to rise.

With a flying movement and dragging the plans behind her, Jerry reached the front basement. Crawled back there. But far back this time. Creeping on through the moist, slimy dark. In there behind the old lumber pile, lying flat, with her face pressed against the plans.

Just as the maid running down the passageway emitted startled gasps: "Bill—Miss Pennings!—" Then a shuddering, aghast: "Felipe! Come quick!"

A long pause. She could see nothing.

But suddenly, oppressively, she knew that Bill was sitting up.

"Lord Almighty—Lord Almighty," came the thick mutter of the Negro. "I knowed I was doing wrong. I knowed it!"

The maid and the cook, gathered in a furore of terror, whispered excitedly as they lifted Mary.

"She's out cold—passed out cold."

"I told her to go up. She drank up all that there whisky. Couldn't stand the heat. Don't none of you two say one word of this—one blessed word to her. She don't never need to know!"

Carrying Mary up the steps.

The door closed. A cavern of silence in which the thumping of Jerry's pulse, the throb of her brain made ominous thunder.

Did they lock the door? Was there a chance to flee up now and escape? Quickly, like a ghost—like a lightning flash while they were busy with Mary?

She crept out from the lumber pile. Listened. And at a sound, crawled back to the shelter, noisome dark. Better wait here till midnight—wait till the house slept.

She sank flat against the moist sand floor. That frightful door was opening. They were coming back! Heavy steps and lighter ones. Heavy whispers.

A searchlight flashing eerily along the walls.

"Say—look again—they can't be gone."

"Lordy!" The Negro, sunk with superstitious terror and the Filipino attempting to scoff at him.

"They can't be gone, Bill. Say, you musta dropped them in the fire before the buggy rolled out on you."

"That there buggy didn't roll out on me! It jumped! It banged! It flew!"

"You're just scared. You been scared ever since you went to see that ghost play—been expecting to meet a bat anywhere."

"Why you think that buggy's gonna roll out tonight when it's been there for the last four years, ever since I put it there myself? Why you think it's gonna take this particular moment to roll out? Without a sound—then bang—crash. Oh, Lord Almighty, like a judgment!"

"We better put it back."

"No—we better leave it there. But I know one thing. I've gotta find them papers and burn them."

Furtive movements of knees and hands over the floor—flashing of the searchlight.

"Where do you think you'll find them, Bill? You musta burned them."

"I sure know I didn't burn them."

"No one took them out of here because Thelma was listening at the basement door. She had her ear to that door from the moment you and Miss Mary came down here. Like she always listens."

"Oh, Gawd—then I gotta look in there—I gotta go in there and look for them."

Bill coming stealthily—flashing of the searchlight over the old table, the chair—touching on the lumber pile.

CHAPTER LXXVIII.

TEN feet from Jerry, the Negro crept along the lumber pile. She heard the thick, groaning mumble of his: 'Lawd Almighty, they's a ghost here or a man stole that there bundle. Don't you let him escape! They's a ghost screamed in Miss Mary's room this morning."

Nearer—feeling his way—the searchlight flashing on the walls and the old chairs perched crazily on the rotted stacks of lumber.

"Don't you run away, cooky! You heard that awful, blood-curdlin' scream this morning! Oh, Lordy! Where can that bundle be?"

The Negro, mumbling incessantly, came creeping—pausing, feeling with his hands.

The searchlight darted almost to the end of the pile now; almost playing on Jerry's feet, almost running along her flat, motionless form.

She pressed her face against the coat where the plans were hidden. She lay quiet with widly thumping heart, and waited.

He was three feet from her. He was at the end of the lumber. Another flash—another move of those great, black hands over the unpaved area—

"Oh, Lordy, find that there big 'mense bundle for this yere darky!"

The searchlight wavering three inches from her frenzied eyes. She seized the mad, sudden inspiration and answered the Negro's prayer with a prolonged moaning, "Noooo!" Nooooo!"

The sound iterated with an agonized groan—a long, shuddering protest of denial. Then fled like a ghost through palsied, enveloping silence.

Merely Margy, An Awfully Sweet Girl

Story by Lloyd Mayer

By John Held, Jr.

Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.

"My dear, I'm all hot and BOTHered—I mean I'm ACtually FIT to be TIED at this point, no less, because I'm HONestly just TOO TIRED of ARab's sort of FRIVolous iDEAS and all, my dear, because I mean he simply NEVer gets INTrested in the WORTH while things of LIFE, sort of, but is practicably ALways CONsecrated on ePHEMeral PLEASures and things all the entire time, do you know what I mean? Well, ANYways, my dear, at this point he's FALLen for some POISonous little FLAPper who's prob'ly WINDing him round her KNEE or something and just making a FOOL of him or something—can you BEAR it, my dear? I mean he ACtually has the VIlest TASTE in GIRLS, my dear, because practicably the ONly type that aPEALS to him is just the NECK-and-PET type that hasn't ANy BRAINS and is just CONsecrated on having a good TIME and all, do you know what I mean? GOSH, my dear, he's SIMply imPOSsible about GIRLS because I mean he just lets ANy girl get ROUND him, sort of. I mean there's NOTHing I'd aDORE more than to see ARab CONsecrate on some AWfully sweet girl of the right TYPE that would be a good INfluence on him and all but I HONestly think it's FOUL of him to WASTE his TIME on these SILly little fluffers who haven't a BRAIN in their HEAD, my dear—I mean I ACtually DO!"

Mrs. Townsend's Surprise Picture Gives Madge and Lillian a Start

BOARDING school girls waiting to see their trunks unpacked after their Christmas vacations could not have been more thrilled than Lillian and I while Mrs. Townsend, equally excited, unwrapped the flat parcel she had brought with her. Of course, with our experience in facial and voice control born of our work in the government secret service, we were not as voluble as little Mrs. Townsend, but I had hard work to keep my fingers from trembling as I took from her hands the large exquisitely made photograph which she handed to me. I did not attempt to suppress the gasp of surprise with which I looked at it, for I knew that stolidity would excite the little woman's suspicion far more than a moderate display of astonishment, and my first glimpse of the photograph warned me that I must tread warily among uncharted paths.

"Remember," Mrs. Townsend had said dramatically as she took the last wrapping from the photograph, "that I purchased this in a famous European art gallery. It is a copy of one of the most cherished portraits they have there. You remember, I spoke of the resemblance that day at The Larches? But my remembrance was vague. I had no idea of this!"

"It is uncanny," I said, studying the photograph closely, while Lillian, whom I had motioned to my side, also scanned it with meticulous attention.

"It is all of that, and then some," she agreed, while Mrs. Townsend watched us with the shining excited eyes of a child who has been privileged to display treasure trove to a group of admiring associates.

The photograph was that of a regally beautiful girl standing upon a terrace with the stately walls of a mansion behind her lined against a background of towering trees. At her right was a sun dial while at her left with her hand resting lightly upon his head, stood a wonderful wolfhound.

"Do you see it?" Mrs. Townsend demanded excitedly.

Lillian's foot touched mine, and I recognized a familiar warning, a request to let her reply and to follow her cue. Right gladly I gave her the return signal, and she spoke slowly, judicially.

"Of course. These figures bear a most remarkable resemblance to Miss Lincoln and the dog, Fedor, which young Mr. Jackson has left in her care. But the face is altogether different to that of Miss Lincoln."

"Not when you study it," Mrs. Townsend asserted. "Look here!"

She snatched up a small magazine lying upon the table and leaning forward laid it across the lower part of the photographed face. The eyes and forehead of Eleanor Lincoln leaped out at us as if they suddenly had been released from an unfamiliar prison.

"Do you see?" she asked.

"Oh, yes," Lillian answered, and I murmured my own assent.

"And here!" the little woman went on, now covering the upper part of the face and showing us the lovely curved lips and unmistakable firm though rounded chin of our young neighbor of The Larches.

"What do you say to that?" she demanded.

Doctors Prescribe Liver Diet

NEWEST DISCOVERY

HEMO-LIVER

Millions of people are eating liver on the advice of doctors to gain strength and enrich blood. Now many are turning to Hemo-Liver.

It contains the mysterious substances extracted from beef livers which create rich, strong blood and strengthen the vital forces of men and women and is an expensive formula to produce.

But what matters the cost to any thin-blooded, weakly, run-down man or woman if by taking this pleasant preparation they are able to obtain those marvelous elements that mean so much to them in the way of renewed physical strength and vital vigor?

Every druggist in America is authorized to return the purchase price if one bottle (8 days' treatment) doesn't prove to you that Hemo-Liver will bring back health, vitality, energy and old-time ambition in fullest measure.

As a spring tonic it surpasses old-time remedies.

You can get Hemo-Liver at May Drug Co. Stores and all good druggists.

580 DOCTORS recently questioned, warn, "Inferior toilet papers are injurious.' They point out, "Improper kinds can irritate, mechanically and chemically."

Doctors warn:

"Never buy harsh toilet papers"

"By the use of too coarse a toilet tissue much harm can be done."

These are the words of the famous New York Specialist, Dr. J. F. Montague, of the Bellevue Hospital Medical College Clinic, in his very interesting recent book, *Troubles We Don't Talk About.

The same authority continues: "We can at least adopt for toilet use a tissue such as ScotTissue, which is soft and free from alkali bleaching material. By its gentle use we can accomplish cleansing without damage to the skin, and in this manner maintain local hygiene."

Even in this modern day, most so-called toilet tissue is just ordinary tissue paper in rolls. Chemical analysis not uncommonly finds it acid in reaction. Hard-surfaced and glazed, it may be actually abrasive to sensitive membranes.

The makers of ScotTissue and Waldorf make only special toilet tissue. Every roll must meet the physician's strictest requirements for softness, absorbency and chemical purity.

Take no chances. Ask for ScotTissue or Waldorf. They fit all standard-size recess fixtures.

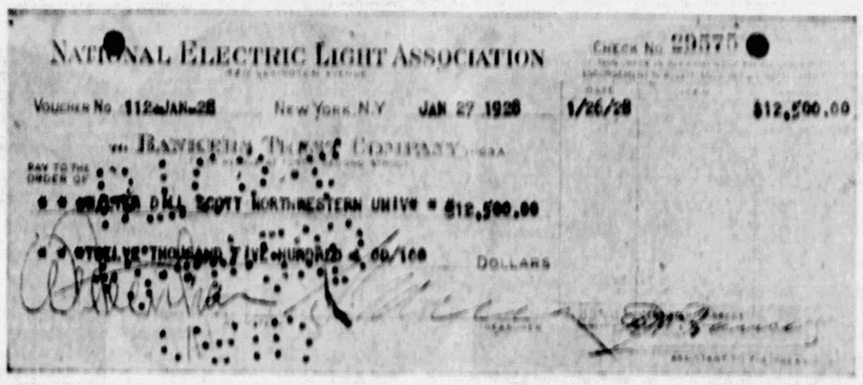
HARVARD

HERE is one of the checks going to make up the $30,000 subsidy which is being paid annually to the Harvard University Graduate School of Business Administration by the National Electric Light Association, chief propaganda organization of the electric power interests.

The purpose of the subsidy, which goes to a "research staff in public utility management," is, as the National Electric Light Association records show, "toproduce an adequate textbook on public utility relations," which "would better appear under academic auspices than as a publication of this association," also "it is obvious that such literature, bearing the imprint of Harvard University, would be quite generally adopted by other institutions."

West Is West—



NATIONAL ELECTRIC LIGHT ASSOCIATION CHECK MADE OUT: "PAY TO THE ORDER OF WALTER DILL SCOTT, NORTHWESTERN UNIVERSITY—$12,500."

NORTHWESTERN

HERE is a check to the president of Northwestern, half the annual subsidy of $25,000 to the university by the National Electric Light Association. This payment is to help support Prof. Richard T. Ely's institute for research in land and public utility economics, which specializes in collecting arguments against Government operation of public utilities. On February 16, 1928, the public policy committee of the National Electric Light Association received a letter from Dr. Ely "requesting financial support from the National Electric Light Association for a study into municipal ownership activities in California," where the Los Angeles public-owned electric light system is under constant attack by the National Electric Light Association.

The public utility mentors of the university courses keep a careful eye on the new books being written in their respective territories. They supervise the contents of such books and, if they are wholly satisfactory, help in marketing them with the assistance of the nation-wide network of public utility organizations. Their method of gently guiding a professor to say what he should say in his book is clearly set forth in the following letter, written at Lincoln, Neb., on August 11, 1923, by Horace M. Davis, secretary-treasurer of the National Electric Light Association, addressed to E. M. Lytle, of the Illinois state committee.

"One of our state university professors, Kirchman, of the College of Business Administration, is writing a work under contract with the Shaw Publishing Company on investment. He is now ready for a chapter on public utilities and came to see me. We spent a couple of hours today that I was able to furnish him with some literature that he considers pat."

The Death Roll

Wilson A. Shaw

Wilson A. Shaw, 82, vice president of the Bank of Pittsburgh, N. A., died yesterday at his home at 529 Pine street, Sewickley. Mr. Shaw also was chairman of the board of the Bank of Pittsburgh, N. A., and held a similar position at the Fidelity Title & Trust Company. He was honorary president of the Associated Charities.

Mr. Shaw was born in Glenshaw and spent his entire life in the Pittsburgh district. He formerly was connected with the Merchants & Manufacturers National Bank, which later merged with the Bank of Pittsburgh. He was an elder in the Shadyside Presbyterian Church and a member of the Duquesne Club and the Edgeworth Club, Sewickley.

Honoring the memory of Mr. Shaw, the offices of the Associated Charities will be closed Saturday. Mr. Shaw has been head of the organization 12 years and since 1922 has been its honorary president. He leaves a sister; three nieces and a nephew.

Clarence R. Haslett.

Clarence Riggs Haslett, aged 35, died Wednesday at the Columbia Hospital. With the exception of 13 years in Independence, Kan., he had lived at his late home, 504 Hay street, Wilkinsburg, all his life. He was a member of the Second United Presbyterian Church of Wilkinsburg, Fortitude Lodge, F. & A. M., and Islam Grotto. Mr. Haslett leaves his parents, Walter N. Haslett and Maggie Gardner Haslett; his widow, Ruth Sturr Haslett, and four children.

Mrs. Mary C. McConnelly

Mrs. Mary C. McConnelly, 85, widow of James McConnelly, died yesterday in her home at 852 East Hutchison avenue, Edgewood. She was born at Croff Creek, Washington county but spent most her life in Pittsburgh. She was a member of the Edgewood Presbyterian Church. She leaves a daughter, two grandchildren, a great-grandchild and a brother.

Mrs. H. Armond.

Mrs. Margaret May Lester Armond, lecturer and dramatic artist, died Thursday evening at the home of her sister, Mrs. Charles C. Ellison, 291 North Ralph avenue, Bellevue. Mrs. Armond was born in Pittsburgh and for many years had been the leading lady with several dramatic companies. For the past 12 years she had been traveling with her husband, Prof. H. Armond, and lecturing on his productions. During the World War she lectured in Europe. She was a member of the Methodist Protestant Church. Besides her husband ans sister, she leaves two brothers, B. A. Lester and Lloyd P. Lester.

Mrs. Thomas T. Kirk.

Mrs. Sarah A. Ingram Kirk, 57, wife of Dr. Thomas T. Kirk, died Wednesday at her home, 257 West Penn place. Mrs. Kirk was born in Ohio, and for the last 31 years had been a resident of Pittsburgh. She was a member of the Friendship Park Methodist Episcopal Church. Besides her husband she leaves two sisters, Mrs. J. L. Call and Mrs. A. D. Gall, both of Hammondville, O., and two brothers, Thomas Ingram, of East Springfield, O., and Dr. Clarence H. Ingram, of Pittsburgh.

ONE HURT, ONE ARRESTED AS AUTOMOBILES CRASH

CHILDREN JUNIOR AIDES -:- VOTE LEAGUE BENEFIT CARD PARTY -:- ANNUAL AFTERNOON AFFAIR

CHAIRMAN

Mrs. Frank O. Graham was chairman of the junior aides at the benefit card party, William Penn Hotel, by the County League of Women Voters.

JUNIOR AIDES

Marjorie McCreery, Polly Jane Duckwall, Barbara Miller, Jean Blakeslee, Ruth Bourne, Dorothy Oliver, Babbie Feltyberger and Leila Bond were among the junior aides who sold candy and cakes at the benefit affair of the women voters of the county.

GENERAL CHAIRMAN

The success of the benefit, the one big affair given by the County League during the season, is largely due to Mrs. W. A. Durell, who was general chairman. She directed the work of her many aides.

JUNIOR AIDES

Other junior aides included Betty Jane Oliver, Betty Wainwright, Virginia Ballard, Eleanor Merrick, Frances Graham, Jane McLean and Eliza Miller, who helped their elders in conducting the benefit. The proceeds will go towards the educational and maintenance fund.

PERMANENT CHAIRMAN

Mrs. R. Templeton Smith, who has been chairman of the Allegheny County League for several years, was actively interested in the benefit.

Junior Set of "400" Organize to Vie With Seniors in Promotion of Philanthropic Work

THE younger set of the "400" has its organizations just as well as the older set. And the girls of the society group have an organization of their own—the Junior League. You remember, I'm sure, a conference of the Junior Leagues held in Pittsburgh and Sewickley some months ago?

Well, there will be a national conference of the Junior League this month—May 22, 23 and 24, to be held in Buffalo. Society girls from all over the nation will be in Buffalo on those days. Of course there will be many social events associated with the conference, but the chief purpose of the meeting will be in a discussion of the various philanthropic works done by the individual leagues making up the membership.

The Pittsburgh League, which includes the younger set of Sewickley, will be represented, I hear, by Augusta Leovy, the president; Mrs. Charles Snowden and Mrs. Hepburn Walker.

The Pittsburgh representatives will, undoubtedly, have much to tell about the work of the Pittsburgh Junior League Thrift Shop, 5427 Penn avenue. Here all sorts of things, particularly wearing apparel, contributed by those interested in the work, are sold. The proceeds, as you know, are for the Girls' Service Club. This club is a temporary home for young girls who come to the attention of the various charitable organizations of the city. In this home the girls live while their problems are being solved. There is something very appropriate, don't you think, in the Junior League members helping less fortunate girls?

The Thrift Shop has a large clientele, I understand, and therefore is always in need of contributions.

The work of the Pittsburgh League is conducted by Augusta Leovy, the president; Mrs. Alan M. Scaife, first vice president; Anna Childs, second vice president, and other officers.

While the "little season" of Pittsburgh seems to be waning, in London it is at its height. Buckingham Palace is, of course, the center of all social functions of Britain. And many American debutantes and society women are being presented at court. There are to be five courts, by the way, instead of four, in London this season.

And among those recently presented to King George and Queen Mary was Mrs. Wainwright Abbott, of this city. Mrs. Abbott has been living abroad for several years, you know.

Many society folks are taking advantage of the lull between returns from the South and departures for the North to visit in nearby cities. Mrs. Taylor Allderdice has been in Bethlehem, I hear. She is expected back in the city on Monday.

And Mrs. Simon T. Patterson is in New York, where she will remain several days. She'll be back in the city soon though, for as president of the Pleasant Hill Farm Association, she will be busy with plans for the phantom radio ball which will be given, you know, by the association on Saturday evening, May 19.

The association, you'll recall, has a Vacation Camp for Girls, near Coraopolis. Over a thousand girls each summer enjoy a real vacation at the camp.

This "phantom" ball, you know, is really a strictly home affair, from 9 to 10:30 o'clock, and the entertainment will, as you may have suspected, be broadcast over the radio. Tickets and boxes will be sold, but purchasers will spend the evening at their own firesides, listening to their own loud-speakers.

Mrs. Howard Dougan Meghan will be her sister's matron of honor at the wedding of Miss Mary Steele Wylie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Renwick Wylie, of Wilkinsburg, and Albert James Wilson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Wilson, of Wilkinsburg, which will take place Saturday night, May 19, at 8:30 o'clock in the Second Presbyterian Church of Wilkinsburg. The bridesmaids will be Mrs. James Renwick Wylie, Jr., Miss Florence Wilson, sister of the bridegroom; Miss Elizabeth Newell and Miss Beatrice Brannan, of Wellsville, O. Lawrence C. Euwer will be best man, and the ushers will include William Griffith, Howard D. Megahan, John Hunter Wylie and James Renwick Wylie, Jr. The ceremony will be performed by the Rev. Dr. Thomas D. Edgar.

A part of the operetta, "Alice in Wonderland," composed by Harvey Gaul, will be played by Max Siesert tomorrow afternoon when the film of the same name will be shown at Syria Mosque for the benefit of the Community School. Henzie and E. Martin Browne will give readings from children's literature, including "Three Cautionary Tales," "The Nightingale and the Rose" and "The King's Breakfast." Mrs. A. Leonard Balter will be their accompanist.

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Miss Frances Forrest Swarthout, formerly of Washington, Pa., and Arthur Milton Young, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward B. Young, of Philadelphia, which was solemnized in the Little Church Around the Corner, New York. They will spend their honeymoon abroad. Mr. Young was formerly a member of the faculty of Washington and Jefferson College.

The second in the series of commencement recitals will be given tomorrow night in the assembly hall of the Pennsylvania College for Women, when Miss Jane Willard, pianist, and Miss Katherine Owen, reader, will be presented.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. Richard M. Kuhn, of South Negley avenue, are visiting Mrs. Kuhn's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Hiller, Jr., at Forest Hills, Long Island.

Miss Mary Frances Hedrick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. H. Hedrick, of Crafton, will appear as Ceres, Goddess of the Seasons, at the May Day fete at Beaver College, May 18.

WILKINSBURG WOMEN HONOR RETIRING HEAD

The Thursday Afternoon Club of Wilkinsburg had one of its most enjoyable meetings of the season yesterday when Mrs. H. S. Huselton, of East End avenue, entertained the members and their guests in honor of the retiring president, Mrs. A. L. Schieber. Mrs. Schieber and the three hostesses, Mrs. Huselton, Mrs. R. E. Evans and Mrs. H. E. Carmack, received together. The program was one of artistic merit and was given by Mrs. Alan D. Kirk and Mrs. Tracy W. Morrison. The former read "The Silver Cord," giving it a delightful interpretation, and Mrs. Morrison's lovely soprano solos added much to the afternoon. About 75 guests were present, among them being the presidents of several neighboring clubs. Mrs. Huselton poured during the charmingly appointed tea hour.

"Pioneer Days," a resume of early club history, will be given by some of the pioneer members of the Nature Club on Thursday at the Congress of Clubs. A board meeting will precede the dinner at 6 o'clock and election of officers will take place. Miss Marie Knauz, chairman of the house committee, has charge of the club's week-end party at Na-wak-wa Lodge. A course in field biology will be given this summer at the lodge under the University of Pittsburgh. The club maintains a scholarship fund which is open to teachers interested in nature study.

Mrs. C. L. Todd, Mrs. I. D. Goodwin and Mrs. E. B. Hinshaw were hostesses yesterday for the annual guest day of the Pittsburgh Chapter, P. E. O. Sisterhood, in the Congress of Clubs. Mrs. Charles Goerlitz, chairman of program, presented Mrs. Delphine Heimert, who gave three groups of songs in costume, which were most enthusiastically received. Her accompanist was Miss Harriet Werly. New officers of the chapter are: Mrs. Chester A. Buckner, president; Mrs. Harry S. Coleman, vice president; Mrs. Howard M. Elsy, recording secretary; Mrs. John T. Brown, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Robert J. McAdams, treasurer; Mrs. William M. Woodfin, chaplain, and Mrs. I. D. Goodwin, guard.

A musical program and a health talk featured the annual guest day held yesterday by the Wilkinsburg Civic Club in the Penn Lincoln Hotel. Mrs. E. C. Weaver was in charge and Mrs. Bertha Gross King presented the music. It consisted of violin solos by Ralph G. White; contralto numbers by Mrs. Ralph Baily; soprano by Mrs. J. C. Bily; vocal duets by Mrs. King and Mrs. Baily, with the former accompanying all the performers. The talk, which was on "The Care of Children's Teeth," was by Dr. J. K. Wampler. The tea hour followed.

Members of the Monday and the Woman's clubs of Carnegie were guests of the Rosslyn Farms Woman's Club yesterday afternoon in the school auditorium. Mrs. E. G. Dignan, the president, introduced the Rev. Dr. Carl Wallace Petty, who spoke on "Spiritual Life in the Home." The club choral, directed by Mrs. C. P. Galleher, and accompanied by Mrs. J. L. Fox, sang. The choral concluded its season's rehearsals with music week commemoration in the home of Mrs. Galleher.

George Seibel, literary and dramatic editor of the Sun-Telegraph, will address the Pittsburgh branch, American Association of University Women, at a meeting in the Congress of Clubs tomorrow afternoon. Mr. Seibel's subject is "Newspaper, Pulpit and Stage." The meeting is the association's annual business one at which officers will be elected and at which new members are to be special guests. The round table on international relations will meet prior to the general session.

Two one-act plays, "The Neighbors," and "A Cure for Indifference," coached by Mrs. J. L. Hickernell, and "A Fashion Show of the Nineties," written by Mrs. Helena Flinn Gregg and costumed by Miss Alena Horner, will be presented in South Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church, Wilkinsburg, this evening.

* * *

In the home of Mrs. D. T. Thompson the Bradford Woods Woman's Club will meet tonight to hear Mrs. Chauncey Lobingier speak on "The New Education in Russia." The club will hold an all-day sewing Thursday, May 24, in the home of Mrs. M. P. Sullivan.

SUN-TELEGRAPH SPORTS

BEST IN PITTSBURGH — FRIDAY, MAY 11, 1928 — THIRTY-FIVE

SPORT COMMENT by JAMES J. LONG

Trade of O'Farrell for Harper Shows No Great Gain for Either Side — Fussell's Pitching Gives Pirate Defeat Silver Lining —Kremer, Hill and Meadows, Ace Pitchers, Have Won Only Three Games With Season Month Old.

WHILE at first thought, the average baseball fan may be inclined to believe that the New York Giants got the better of the deal closed last night whereby Catcher Bob O'Farrell was obtained from the St. Louis Cardinals in exchange for Outfielder George Harper, old sober second thought suggests a number of things that indicate it wasn't a one-sided swap after all. That is, unless Manager McGraw of the Gothamites intends to use one of his surplus catchers in a second exchange with a different club.

George Harper.

As at is, there is no great amount of evidence on the surface to indicate that New York profited more than the Cardinals. This for the reason that McGraw already has one fine catcher in Frank Hogan, and he cannot use two star catchers in the lineup at one time, not to mention the flock of additional catching ability he owns in Cummings, Haeffner, Chaplin and Spohrer.

ON the other hand he gave up one of the most reliable hitters in the big leagues, and a man who has won more games for New York than any catcher has won for that club in a long time. George is four years and four months older than O'Farrell, and will be 36 on June 24, but his advancing years have never appeared to decrease his playing ability. He hit .340 one year with Cincinnati, and though he slumped for a couple of seasons he came back and batted .349 in 1925, .314 in 1926 and .331 last year. His long hits in 1927 included 16 home runs, 6 triples and 19 doubles.

IN some ways, it's a hard trade to understand on both sides. McGraw has other left-hand hitting outfielders, but unless he figures that O'Farrell will be more valuable than Hogan in coaching and developing the young Giant pitchers he has given away a serviceable player for one he did not need particularly. On the St. Louis side we find the Cardinals parting with the only first-class catcher they had and depending upon a couple of rookies in Davis and Mancuso.

But there may have been another reason for the trading of O'Farrell. Some baseball men hold that it is bad business for a new manager to retain on his club the man who was manager before him. It is held that the deposed manager has close friends on the club who will side with him rather than with the new boss in case of a split, and that as long as the former manager remains on the club there is always danger of discord.

O'Farrell appears not to be of a trouble-making type, but Bill McKechnie may have figured it would be safest to keep in mind the old baseball saying "once a manager, always a manager."

Bob O'Farrell.

BESIDES, don't forget that there was an element of dollars and cents in the deal, and the St. Louis club has never been known to overlook any bets in that line. O'Farrell's salary is said to be $20,000, and Harper's is far below that sum, though he promises to be more of a help than O'Farrell, who has not caught in a game since April 29.

PROBABLY both clubs knew what they were doing, but in any event it does not look as if there were much of an edge either way.

It will not be surprising if a second trade follows soon, as New York and Cincinnati are reported to have almost agreed upon the details of a swap.

PITTSBURGH'S second successive defeat yesterday at the hands of the New York invaders was not without its silver lining, as it was pretty definitely established during the latter part of the proceedings that the Pirates have picked up another real pitcher this year in the person of Southpaw Fred Fussell.

The original dope was that the Pirates had landed a hurler of more than average ability when Fussell was purchased. He was said to have remedied some faults that had caused him to fail when the Cubs tried him in the fall of 1922 and in 1923, and this appeared to be borne out by the fact that he won 21 games against only eight lost and thus helped Wichita Falls to win the Texas League pennant last year and then won two of the four games played with New Orleans, Southern Association champions, in the post-season Dixie series.

PRIOR to yesterday, however, Fussell had pitched less than two innings of relief work for the Buccaneers, and some of the fans had yet "to be shown."

But what the lefthander did after being called in to relieve Kremer with one out in the fourth surely was convincing. He couldn't save a game that was already lost, but the way he mowed down the Giants—11 of them in a row at one stage—showed that with a little batting support he would have landed the Bucs on the winning side.

Bill Terry.

IN 5 1-3 innings, only 20 men faced Fussell and only four men got to first base, two on hits and two on walks. That's rather convincing evidence that he was pitching some real baseball in there, and his showing and its promise for the future gave the Pirate rooters some morsel of comfort and consolation in the hour of defeat. And at that Fussell had a sore arm for some time this spring and is supposed to be a hot weather pitcher rather than one likely to shine in early May.

THE new Pirate's great pitching yesterday just about earned for him the right to start a game of his own, and it will not be surprising if Manager Donie Bush, after resting him up a bit, starts him against the Brooklyn team about Monday.

GRANTING that Fred Fitzsimmons has been uncommonly effective against the Pirates on several occasions, and that he beat the locals four times out of six last season, the fact remains that if one fly ball had been caught in left field yesterday the Bucs would have had a fair lead and there is no telling what would have happened to Fitz under such circumstances. The continued failure of Kremer to show his right stuff is a matter of growing concern to Pittsburgh fans. Before the game yesterday he looked to be on the right edge and he said the arch trouble in his right foot was not bothering him,

Sterling Young Stars With Giants

ATTRACTION

Andy Cohen is the best new "gate" attraction of the year in the major leagues, and he has more than lived up to his advance notices with the Giants. He got back in the game against the Pirates after being forced out by an attack of influenza during the stay in Cincinnati.

ALL-ROUND STAR

Young Ott, who is only 19 years old, is an all-round performer. He has done everything but pitch for the Giants since he joined them in the fall of 1925. He was plucked off a semi-pro team in his native Louisiana and never played in a minor league. He went to the Giants as a catcher, but now is being used in the outfield and as a relief man for Cohen at second base.

Ott Kid Sensation Of Game

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.

A BOY who never played minor league baseball and who jumped from the catching job on a high school club via the semi-pros to a major league berth, is stealing some of the show from the Waner boys and other National League sensations. The youngster is Melvin Ott, versatile 17-year-old Southerner, who is a big reason why the Giants are holding the honor position in the National League despite an extraordinary run of sickness.

Melvin, a dangerous, hard-hitting

PREAKNESS ATTRACTS ELITE OF TURF

BALTIMORE, May 11.—(AP.)—Twenty-one of the finest among America's three-year-old thoroughbreds are ready to show their class in the Preakness today.

In the list of entries for the mile and three-sixteenths feature with $50,000 added money and the historic Woodlawn vase at stake are a few who are considered doubtful starters. But among the others is such a showing of form on winnings in previous starts and times of sensational workouts here that race followers are predicting an open affair with great variety in the choice of probable winners.

While the track was somewhat heavy yesterday a bright sun was drying it out fast and adding to the chances of the New York favorites, Nassak, the son of John P. Grier and Ethel D., entered by Harry F. Sinclair's Rancocas stable, and to be ridden by Laverne Fator. If the track remains heavy, however, public favor is apt to turn toward Whealey stable's Distraction or the Audley farm's Bobashela, winner of the Chesapeake handicap at Havre De Grace.

There is some support of the 10 to 1 variety for Knapsack, a Salubria stable entry. S. O'Donnell will have a leg up on this mount. On Say also is rated a 10 to 1 shot, and so is Victorian, Honker, a Whitney entry, and Strolling Player.

Petee Wrack, to be ridden by M. Garner, is listed at 12 to 1 and may surprise the folks and come across. Toro, with E. Ambrose on top, is considered to be a 15 to 1 bet, and so is Solace.

Friars Hope and Don Q. are the longest shots, both being placed in the betting at 50 to 1.

SARAZEN SECOND BY TWO STROKES

the last round got under way, was not equal to the task of saving the title for the homeland and placed third with 295. Like Sarazen, he scored 73 in his final round.

Walter started the event with a casual 75, while Jose Jurado, the Argentine, was burning up the course. But the American merely was biding his time for one of those last day finishes for which he is justly famous. Jurado cracked after Hagen passed him by a stroke at noon, and from that point it only was a question of whether Sarazen would be able to overtake the leader.

The victory was Hagen's first in a major championship in four years, unless the American P. G. A. championship be included, and it also afforded this slick young man the satisfaction of a complete redemption from that 15-up-and-17-to-play

SPEAKING OF SPORTS by HARRY KECK SPORTS EDITOR

RED MASON is telling a story on Danny Nirella, the bandmaster. According to Red, he was standing inside one of the gates at Forbes Field with Larry Doyle the day the Giants opened their present series with the Pirates and Danny came along and greeted him. Red began to introduce him to Doyle when Nirella piped up with:

"Oh, I know him. He's Cozy Dolan."

Whereupon Mason had to call for reserves to break up the fight.

Something tells us Danny was kidding both of 'em.

THE Dukes are working in a noble cause and deserve the heartiest support of all true sportsmen. They have scheduled their final game of the 1928 football season, on Thanksgiving Day, for 10:30 in the morning for the sole reason of breaking the public of the lazy habit of sleeping

THE Pittsburgh Pirates and the New York Giants enjoyed a day of rest this afternoon when rain prevented the final battle of their four-game series at Forbes Field.

The Pirate officials in announcing the postponement stated that the game would be played off as part of a doubleheader on August 23, when the Giants will be making their second invasion of the west.

Tomorrow afternoon the Brooklyn Dodgers will make their first appearance of the season at Forbes Field, opening a four-game series with the Corsairs.

The Bob O'Farrell-George Harper trade was the big topic of conversation among the Giants and Pirates today.

Manager John McGraw caused a lot of excitement in Oakland last night when he announced that he had traded his veteran outfielder for the former manager of the Cardinals, who has been the first-string catcher in St. Louis since Bill McKechnie took the reins of leadership.

At first blush it was immediately figured by some observers that McGraw had bested McKechnie and the Redbirds, but there are quite a few angles to the transaction.

CHILLY SAUCE By CHILLY DOYLE

BOB O'FARRELL will not be seen in a Giant uniform in Pittsburgh on this visit of the New York club. The Redbird star has been ordered to report to McGraw in Chicago. The Polo Grounders are scheduled to open a series with the Cubs tomorrow.

Sturdy Bob is a hard hitter, but it is doubtful whether the Cardinal can give the ball as much punishment as Francis Hogan, who is the heavy man under the bat for the Giants at present. Hogan's liner that handcuffed Pete Scott yesterday was a rifle-shot drive that showed no inclination to be falling when Pete challenged it.

As a rule, two outstanding catchers on one club do not give the team owning them the same amount of value as two good infielders. Only one catcher can work at a time. When Hartnett and O'Farrell were both in Chicago uniforms, the Cubs were not such a fine attraction.

The Pirates face an unusual schedule over the next three days. The departure of the Giants tonight will mark the first appearance of the Dodgers who open a series here tomorrow. At the finish of the first game between the Bucces and Robins the two teams will move to Brooklyn for a Sunday game, after which they will hustle back to Pittsburgh to resume their series.

The schedule does not make a hit with the Dodgers, who will be on sleepers three nights in a row as a result of the Sunday game. The contest was moved up from September.

southpaw sticker, caught for the high school team of Gretna, La., his home town. During vacation times he hooked up with a semi-pro club at Patterson, La. This team was managed by Harry Williams, a friend of John McGraw.

Williams informed McGraw he had a kid catcher who could hit. John J. instructed his friend to send the schoolboy to New York. Not long afterward a 16-year-old athlete walked into the Giant clubhouse. That was in the fall of 1925. Fearing that his age would militate against him, Ott told McGraw he was 18. Little attention was paid to him as he worked with the pitchers in the bullpen, but he impressed McGraw, who instructed him to report to the training camp the next season.

The next year McGraw asked Melvin if he ever had played the outfield.

"Yes, when I was a kid," he responded.

He was made into an outfielder at once and since has played all three pasture posts for the Giants and all other positions except that of pitcher.

He was 19 last March 2.

VIC HANSON ILL

W. P. I. A. L. Meet Here

By JESS CARVER

A HEAVY program of track meets and tennis matches, from high school dual meets to the Pitt-State classic at State College swells tomorrow's sport program to impressive dimensions. Throughout the tri-state and eastern district, the college and high school runners, jumpers and tennis hopefuls will see fast and furious action.

As far as Pittsburgh is concerned, the annual W. P. I. A. L. track and field championships in the Pitt Stadium will draw the major attention with Carnegie Tech's dual meet with Westminster taking second place. The scholastic meet, drawing as it will the cream of Western Pennsylvania's high school athletes and promising a five-cornered fight between South Brownsville, Washington, Beaver Falls, New Castle and Greensburg, should eventually develope some record breaking performances.

South Brownsville will enter the meet a favorite, mainly because Coach Slagel's team won the annual Tech interscholastic last Saturday. Washington, New Castle and Beaver Falls, however, with teams of the caliber of Salem of Ohio and Lock Haven of the eastern section of this state out of the way, will cop a flock of points and may cut into the advantage South Brownsville confidently expects to produce.

The Tartans hardly figure to beat Westminster in the dual meet over in the Tartan Bowl, and probably would rather enter the competition underdogs. There is potential strength in the Tech squad that may be awakened, and if it is, a Skibo victory will not come as a surprise.

PITT FACES STATE

Both the varsity and freshmen track teams of Pitt are to leave for State College tonight for the meet with the Lions tomorrow. The less said about Pitt's record on the track against State the better.

You can count the victories Pitt has scored over State in track during the past decade on the fingers of one hand and still have enough left over to toot a good whistle.

This year, with a good team, fairly well balanced, the Panthers are going to enter the meet at least even bets. It will be up to Capt. Welch, Don Gwinn, known to the boys on the team as Joe Hammer; Vic Pickard, Ken Webecan, Knoblock, McCullough, Robb, Goldstein and Roy and Adams to work like the very dickens if the Lions are to be bounced.

Geneva, beaten so far in a dual engagement by West Virginia, but victors over Tech, will meet Grove City at Grove City. The Covenanters will be favored to win this engagement.

Bethany hopes to carry off four or five first places against West Virginia tomorrow, but does not look forward to winning the meet. Running on the West Virginia Stadium track, Tarr, Elliott and Markley should turn in some good times in their specialties.

Both the Pitt and Tech tennis teams are still in the East, but will be winding up their seaboard invasions with matches tomorrow. Pitt meets the Navy at Annapolis and the Tartans face Penn State at State College.

St. Louis Fans Are Divided

ST. LOUIS, May 11.—(INS.)—St. Louis baseball fans were divided today in their opinions of the trade that sent Catcher Bob O'Farrell, of the Cardinals, to the New York Giants in exchange for George W. Harper, 36-year-old outfielder.

The deal, the most sensational since Rogers Hornsby blazed the same trail, was announced late yesterday by Sam Breadon, president of the Cardinals.

Local fans were dazed by the announcement. It was not even known that O'Farrell, who succeeded the Rajah as Cardinal manager, was on the block. The deal further surprised because Bob is the only veteran receiver on the Cards' roster.

O'Farrell, who came to St. Louis from the Chicago Cubs, has been extremely popular not only with the Cardinal players, but also with the fans.

Pointing out his reasons for the sensational trade, Breadon said:

"Everybody on the Cardinal club has been crying for another left-handed hitter. Mancuso (a rookie catcher) has shown such rare promise as to indicate he will capably fill the first-string catching role in O'Farrell's absence."

John McGraw and Breadon closed the deal over long-distance telephone yesterday.

Hagen, Sarazen Rounds Described Hole by Hole

SANDWICH, Eng., May 11.—(INS.)—The hole-by-hole description of the last two rounds played by Walter Hagen and Gene Sarazen today in the British open golf tournament, rounds which brought them in first and second, respectively, follows:

MORNING ROUNDS.

HAGEN

Hagen was his usual debonair self when he approached the first tee. He sent the ball 300 yards on his drive and got on the green with his mashie shot, but spoiled it all by getting in a little erratic putting. He took three putts in all for a five, missing the second at five feet.

On the second hole he again drove well and got on the green with his mashie. But this time "Sir Walter" gave the spectators a little thrill by putting eight yards to the lip of the cup where the ball swayed dizzily, but woud not fall. It was a tough birdie to lose.

But Walter was not to be stopped this day. He finally landed his birdie on the next hole. His drive overran the green, but his chip shot brought the ball within five feet of the cup and he sank the putt.

On the fourth Hagen showed the customers how to use an iron. His drive landed in the middle of a deep bunker. Refusing to play safe, he calmly took his No. 3 iron and lifted the ball 180 yards, almost to the edge of the green. He then ran the ball up five feet from the pin and sank the putt for a four.

Following a good drive on the fifth, Hagen used an iron for a beautiful shot over the sea of sand which trapped him yesterday. The ball landed in front of the green. A fine approach shot then brought his ball within an inch of the cup, but the elusive sphere passed its would-be haven disdainfully and went four feet on the other side of the pin. Hagen then did his duty and got his four.

On the sixth "Sir Walter's" iron again served him well. He teed off with it and his drive on this short hole landed on the green, 18 feet from the cup. He then sank the putt while the gallery cheered and cheered. He smiled broadly and acknowledged the applause by doffing his headgear.

Hagen leaned on the ball when he drove off from the seventh tee and the sphere landed 300 yards away. Then he took his brassie and hit a low flier which landed in the middle of a bunker 30 yards from the green.

A nice chip brought him on to the green. The ball was 12 feet from the cup, but Hagen was playing as in the days of yore and he settled the putt without any trouble.

On the eighth, Hagen reached the green on his drive, but then took two putts for a three.

He got a good drive on the ninth and reached the green on the second shot. Then he sat down and studied the ball's position, but he missed a 12-footer and took a four.

This gave him a 33, two below par for the nine holes out. A tremendous gallery was following the American star. Those who had started out with Abe Mitchell all but deserted him to watch the American perform.

On the tenth, Hagen got off his usual superb drive and reached the green on the second shot, but he needed two putts to hole out and had to be satisfied with a four.

After another good drive on the eleventh the wind carried his iron shot far to the left corner of the green in the rough. Hagen chipped the ball on the green and then sank it in two putts for a five.

On the twelfth Hagen showed that even if he was Hagen, he was still human enough to slice his drive. The ball almost buried itself in the rough. However, "Sir Walter" retrieved himself by making a par four, anyhow. His mashie shot carried over the green, but he laid a dead approach and sank the putt.

Hagen started the thirteenth with a good drive across the wind, but the latter carried his brassie second to the traps and he took a five, although his bid for a four almost holed. He overran the fourteenth green after another good tee shot and then he chipped back weakly. This cost him another five, as he failed to drop the 18-footer.

Another sound drive was spoiled at the fifteenth when the wind again carried Hagen's second off the line. However, he ran his approach from the edge of the green well up for a par. Another par followed without incident at the short sixteenth.

Again Hagen smote a real tee shot at the seventeenth and again his approach failed him, this one being short. However, he chipped dead and the lost stroke was saved again.

Thousands, anxious to see whether Hagen would take the lead or merely tie Jurado, watched the American play the home hole in a perfect 4.

Hagen's Card:
Out.. 5 4 3 4 4 2 4 3 4—33
In... 4 5 4 5 5 5 3 4 4—39—72—145—220

SARAZEN

Sarazen started in rather erratic style, slicing off the first tee, dropping his second neatly in a bunker and finally taking three putts for a 6, the second putt being only 15 inches in length. But Gene pulled himself together quickly and, for the next half hour his putter went crazy.

After a par 4 at the second, he sank a 12-footer for a 3 at the third, another of the same length at the fourth, a 15-footer at the fifth, a 20-footer at the sixth and a 25-footer at the eighth, the last pair being good for birdie 2's. Sandwich or any other course seldom has witnessed such an exhibition of putting skill.

Sarazen, of course, faced the opportunity of a life time with Jurado and Hagen taking 39's on the last nine and Mehlhorn a 40. But Gene couldn't beat 39 himself. Poor golf on the tenth, thirteenth and seventeenth was the answer.

Gene was short of the green with his approach at the tenth, chipped well up to the pin but missed the putt and took a 5. Then he almost got it back at the eleventh, but his long putt for a birdie curled away. He got a par here and another at the twelfth, where his approach putt was short, but his second hit the bull's eye.

The thirteenth saw him dub his second and finally take three putts for a 6, but at the fourteenth he forgot yesterday's troubles, reaching the green with his second and barely missing a long putt that would have netted him a birdie. Gene overran the green with his third after being in the rough at the fifteenth, but he chipped back and dropped a nice putt for a par 5.

Sarazen was hole high with his tee shot at the sixteenth and ran his approach putt to the shadow of the pin for a 3. He was back in form at this point, but again he lapsed at the seventeenth, slicing his drive to the rough and overshooting the green with his second, taking a 5.

Then, just to show his variety, Gene got a birdie at the difficult eighteenth with a 200-yard drive, a pitch on and the sinking of a 20-foot putt. His card:
Out 6 4 3 4 4 2 5 2 4—34
In.. 5 4 4 6 4 5 3 5 3—39—73—146—221

AFTERNOON ROUNDS.

HAGEN

Hagen reached the first green with his mashie approach, but didn't quite get down with a 12-footer for his attempt at a birdie. He was short with his approach at the next hole, but replied with a sizeable putt for a 4 after overplaying his approach putt. Hagen's irons were playing him false. He failed to get home on the third with his spoon from the tee and his approach left him a four-footer, which he forthwith missed.

A 5 followed at the fourth because he failed to reach the green with his second and was very short with a difficult uphill approach putt. He experienced the same difficulty at the fifth—short with his second and five feet short with his third. But he holed the putt this time.

The Haig, however, missed with a 6-footer at the sixth after he had lofted his tee shot to the short grass on the left. He needed the putt for a par. The eighth was an uneventful par 5, but he got a sorely needed birdie 2 and a salvo of applause at the eighth where he laid a perfect mashie tee shot within a yard of the pin and sank the putt. A 5-foot putt saved the Haig a par at the ninth, after he had been wide with his approach.

Hagen got his 4 on the tenth through the orthodox medium of a drive, pitch and two putts, but at the eleventh he pushed his tee shot to the rough, affording him the opportunity of making one of those magnificent Hagen recoveries, 12 feet from the pin. He sank the second putt for a 4. At the twelfth, he dropped his approach nine feet from the pin and, playing safe, he ran his first putt up dead.

He got quite a break at the thirteenth where a woman's foot providentially diverted his ball to a better lie, leaving him an easy pitch to the green for a 4. Walter was in his first trap of the round at the fourteenth, the deadly "Suez Canal" hole, and his second was popped into a pot bunker. His out overran the green, but he chipped back within four feet of the cup and down went the putt for a par 5.

Hagen knew now that he was in for a good score, yet he declined to play safely on a long carry over a bunker at the fifteenth.

"This shot might win the championship," he said with a smile to the veteran Sandy Herd.

"It hasn't," Herd came back grimly, "it's in the bunker."

It was. But the Haig pitched blithely out to within eight feet of the pin and, with a true Hagen flourish, sank the putt for a four amid thunderous applause. He had almost the entire gallery with him as he finished carefully in three pars.

Hagen's card:
Out .... 4 4 4 5 4 4 5 2 4—36
In ..... 4 4 4 4 5 4 3 4 4—36—72—292

defeat he sustained at Archie Compston's hands upon his arrival in England.

Compston's effort represented all the glory England could muster after Abe Mitchell, George Duncan and other stars had collapsed. Percy Allis did pull a last-minute rush with a 72, but this left him well back at 298. Aubrey Boomer also shot a 72 this afternoon, which carried him into a tie with the fading Jurado at 301.

MEHLHORN WEAKENS

Bill Mehlhorn, another American entrant who had set the pace in the first round and who had continued to hold a position near the top, lost all chance at the title by taking 42 strokes on the last nine. He finished the last round with 77 and the tournament with 302.

Long Jim Barnes, who won the British open in 1925, was too far behind to catch Hagen, but turned in rounds of 76-73 to tie Jurado at 301.

Von Elm Equals Par, But Quits Coast Play

LOS ANGELES, May 11.—(AP.)—George Von Elm of the Los Angeles County Club shot a par 72 over the Lakeside Country Club course in the qualifying round of the Southern California golf championship tournament, which, with his 75 of Wednesday, gave him a total of 147 to lead the field.

Von Elm, who won the tournament championship last year, withdrew from competition at the end of yesterday's play, however, and prepared to leave for the East, passing up defense of his title.

With Von Elm's withdrawal, Lester Hensley of Long Beach, who turned in a card of 149 for the two days' play, went into the lead.

Brignolia Defeats Scello

LARRY BRIGNOLIA, Erie's welterweight hope, repeated his triumph scored some weeks ago at Motor Square Garden over Phil Scello of McKeesport in the closing show of the season at McKeesport last night. In a furious bout, the Erie star won the judges' verdict by a margin about as narrow as the one he held in the Motor Square contest.

The pair staged a hair-raising finish, standing toe to toe during the greater part of the closing two rounds and slugging away with little thought of defense.

Brignolia got away to an early lead, which Scello cut down with a slugging attack in the fourth, fifth, sixth and seventh. In the slugging finish, Brignolia re-established his advantage and took the verdict.

Young Guido of Niles, O., and Jimmy Belmont of Braddock drew in the eig.-round semi-final. Mickey Solmen of New Castle won by a technical knockout over Joe Kilrain of Johnstown in the fifth round of the second bout.

Frankie Moran of Homewood won the verdict over Johnny Pollock in the opening fracas of six rounds.

late on holidays. Do your bit to help along the worthy project!

THE Preakness Stake for 3-year-olds for $50,000 and the famous Woodlawn Vase, to be run at Pimlico today, is one of the most historic events in American turf history. It dates 'way back to 1873. There is dire danger of Harry F. Sinclair winning the money bag this year with his Nassak, the general favorite, which has been brought along nicely for the test by Trainer Sam Hildreth and will be ridden by Laverne Fator. And just think, if the jury hadn't acquitted Sinclair, enabling the Maryland Jockey Club to reinstate him and his stable, poor Nassak wouldn't even be in the race. Perhaps 'tis just as well, as they say, that you can't convict a million dollars.

BOTH the Preakness and the Kentucky Derby, which comes Saturday of next week at Churchill Downs, are rugged tests for the 3-year-olds. The former is over the mile and three-sixteenths route and the latter is at a mile and a quarter. Real staying qualities are needed for both and considerable also depends on the start. A horse, no matter how good, has little chance if he gets packeted in the big field, while a less able runner getting out in front early stands to win with something to spare if he can go the distance.

SENTIMENT with regard to the Sammy Mandell - Jimmy McLarnin bout for the lightweight title at the Polo Grounds, New York, next Thursday night has changed materially since the match was made. When Tex Rickard pulled the battle right out from under the moist fountain pen of Jim Mullen, the Chicago promoter, the gang was dead sure that the Irish lad who has just knocked out Sid Terris in one punch would be a cinch bet to bowl over the class leader any time he wanted to. Now, however, with the bout less than a week away, the betting favors Mandell at 8 to 5. The boys are impressed with the manner in which Mandell has been training and have had time to think over the fact that Terris' chin never was the strongest in the world, anyway, and that Mandell is aces up on McLarnin as a boxer. They still like McLarnin as a puncher, but thought has sobered them on the idea that Mandell will go out the first time McLarnin pokes at him. In fact, many of the wiseacres are wondering if Jimmy ever will hit the swift-moving, clever Sammy with his deadly right.

THEY'RE not making much fuss about it, but the heavyweight show in Madison Square Garden, New York, tonight is likely to be one of the best of the season. The winners will appear in preliminaries to Tunney - Heeney championship match in July and the going is likely to be hot for big fellows. Phil Scott, the English champion, boxes Roberto Roberti, the Italian, in the windup. Arthur De Kuh meets Pierre Charles, Rudi Wagner of Germany opposes Big Boy Peterson and George LaRocco trades punches with Johnny Grosso. Each bout is scheduled for 10 rounds.

OWNERS RELY ON REIGH COUNT

CHICAGO, May 11.—(AP.)—Anita Peabody, the sensational 3-year-old filly owned by Mrs. John D. Hertz, will not start in the Kentucky Derby unless something happens to Reigh Count, the ace of the Hertz stables, between now and Derby Day, Mrs. Hertz made that clear last night as she and her husband left for Louisville, Ky.

Heeney Flops As Latin Scholar

NEW YORK, May 11.—Gene Tunney, Shakespearian scholar and heavyweight champion, need worry no longer about his place of security in the ranks of culture. Not, anyway, so far as Tom Heeney, his next opponent, is concerned.

Booked to "lecture" on Latin before members of the Phi Sigma Kappa fraternity at the Fraternity Club in East Thirty-eighth street yesterday, Heeney tried nobly, but failed utterly and ignobly.

"Dum vivimus vivamus," a Latin inscription for "while we live, let's live," hung on the wall of the dining and "lecture" hall got the quickest decision ever recorded over the British contender.

Called on to prove that Tunney's recent Shakespearian triumph at Yale wasn't so much, Heeney took one look at the inscription and then signaled his manager, John Mortimer, to toss in the sponge.

"'Dum'—that's me. I'll let my manager 'take' that one. It's a push-over for him."

And Heeney sat down amid the cheers and laughter of his hosts.

But what he lacked in the niceties of culture, Heeney made up in an utter lack of pretention to things literary and thereby won his audience.

COUNTY GRADE SCHOOLS IN BIG TRACK MEET

The annual track and field meet of the Allegheny county grade schools was scheduled for this afternoon at the Schenley Oval, under the direction of C. W. Peters.

While the weather was inclement this morning, officials made preparations at the Oval for the meet, in the event that the weather cleared up.

Twenty-seven events were on the program. The Allegheny County High School championship has been slated for May 18 at the same place.

LEE BARNES SETS POLE VAULT RECORD

LOS ANGELES, May 11.—(AP.)—In setting a new world record pole vault mark of 14 feet 1½ inches, Lee Barnes used a bamboo stick 2½ inches shorter than the height he attained.

The University of Southern California track captain said he cracked his favorite pole, one 14 feet one inch in length, shortly before he broke Sabin Carr's 14 feet 1 inch record. Instead of taking a longer pole to go after the mark, he resorted to a 12-foot 11-inch stick that he has packed along all season to use in case of emergency.

Giants Get O'Farrell

paying O'Farrell the princely sum which is his under the terms of his contract. It is whispered that Sir Robert is collecting $20,000 for his year's work. Harper probably is not getting any more than half that amount, so the Cards finished first on the gate end.

McGraw profited in several ways, it would seem. In the first place, John Joseph has a whole galaxy of left-fland hitting outfielders in Eddie Roush, Frank O'Doul, Jimmy Welsh and Melvin Ott.

In making the announcement of the trade, the boss of the league leaders expressed regret at the departure of Harper, who has been playing fine ball for the Polo Grounders. On the other hand, McGraw emphasized that the club needed another catcher of experience to go under the bat in the event of any happening that would keep Francis Hogan out of action.

Bob O'Farrell was voted the most valuable player in the league in 1926, when the Cardinals won the flag and the World Series. For many years, Bob has been one of the topnotch receivers of the sport and it is quite apparent that he is as good now as he ever was. The new Giant at 32 is about four years younger than Harper, who is as lively as many of the kids 15 years his junior.

WILL BE HANDY

O'Farrell should come in handy in steadying the younger of the McGraw sharpshooters. Hogan being a boy of 21, cannot be expected to know what to do in the many critical situations that come up in the course of a year. So the Giants should realize on Bob's greater experience. It might be mentioned that both O'Farrell and Harper are well-behaved players, a consideration that is not taken lightly by any manager in these prohibition days.

The St. Louis end of the argument is inclined to be a little off color to one on the outside looking in. O'Farrell was supposed to be one of the dominating figures in the play of the Redbirds. In Mancuso and Davis Skipper Bill was said to have two promising recruits, but it is exacting a lot to expect a first-year man to hold up the pitchers through the year. However, you can bank on it that McKechnie, a real judge of ball players, did not let O'Farrell get away without being protected.

McGRAW AFTER PENNANT

In any event, the Giant leader seemed to be leaving no stone unturned in an effort to build up another pennant winner. McGraw now has a club with a terrific punch and the acquisition of O'Farrell certainly will not weaken the punch, for Bob is a dangerous batsman all the time.

The third clash of the series was landed by the Giants who jumped on Remy Kremer in the early innings for enough tallies to insure the victory. The Pirates gave them a real fight, the home boys having the tieing run on the sacks in the ninth inning.

In the somewhat disappointing play of the Buccos there stood a new pitcher who furnished the best feature of the game. The hurler is Fred Fussell, who, after relieving Kremer in the fourth gave one of the finest slab exhibitions of the season in the Oakland Orchard. Over a route of five and two-third rounds, the Wichita Falls marvel yielded only two hits and one of these was a flunker. The invaders did not cross the plate while the southpaw was in action, but Fred arrived just a bit too late.

Kremer was anxious to face the enemy, inasmuch as his lame ankle was much beter. But Remy is not in top form this year; he did not have the usual zip to his pitches. Fussell's fine performance probably will get him on Fogarty Knoll as starting pitcher before many days are passed.

A spectacular catch by Left-fielder Ott appears to have licked the Buccos in the third contest. In the third inning the schoolboy star ran almost to the left-field fence to rob Paul Waner of an extra-base hit. The one-handed feature cut deeply into what looked like a big Pirate inning.

Pete Scott's failure to catch Hogan's double in the second opened the way for a pair of New York runs. The new outfielder made a fine effort at a circus catch, but with his both feet feet off the ground and his hands outstretched he was unable to hold the ferocious liner.

Fred Brickell batted for Johnny Gooch in the ninth and beat out a hit to Cohen. Joe Harris, batting for Fussell, tried hard to get a base on balls after having the count of three-and-nothing, but Joe eventually flied out to Harper.

Fred Fitzsimmons, the slab winner for the Giants, showed his mettle in the last round as he pitched to some fine hitters. Sprout Waner followed Harris with a fly to Roush. Manager Bush decided to send Earl Smith up to hit for Sparky Adams. It seems as if the whole New York strategy board centered on Earl, who was "gyped" into looking at a third strike that ended the game.

Dutch Champion Defeated By Helen Wills

THE HAGUE, Holland, May 11.—(AP.)—Helen Wills began her European invasion yesterday with a smashing victory over the Dutch woman champion, Rollin Couquerque, in the first contest of the Holland-American team match.

Miss Wills, her game showing no effects of her recent illness won by scores of 6-2, 6-2, before a crowd of 1500 spectators, including the American minister, Richard M. Tobin.

Student Sanity In Athletes Praised

NEW HAVEN, Conn., May 11.—(AP.)—The annual report of President James Rowland Angell, of Yale University, published today, praises undergraduates for their sanity regarding athletics. It says:

"Although no one can look with entire complacency on the week-end excitement and upheaval incident to the more important football games held in the Bowl, with the inevitable interruption of the continuity of academic work, equally no one familiar with the conditions of an earlier generation can fail to recognize and applaud the far greater sanity with which our undergraduates, as a group, view these occasions and the generally sound attitude reflected in their judgment."

MILITARY MEET CARDED HERE

The Pennsylvania division of the Military Athletic League of America will hold its track and field championship meet on Saturday afternoon, June 9, at the University of Pittsburgh stadium under the auspices of the local units of the Pennsylvania National Guard, the One Hundred and Seventy-sixth Field Artillery, One Hundred and Seventh Field Artillery, the One Hundred and Third Signal Company and the One Hundred and Third Medical Regiment and the One Hundred and Tenth Infantry.

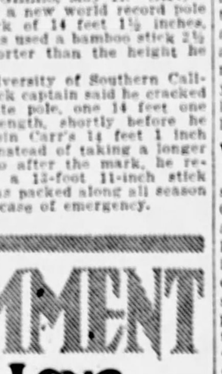
but as early as the second inning it was clear that he was not right.

WHILE the Giants and other clubs have been crippled for a short time through a few of their best players falling victims to attacks of grip, Donie Bush has been handicapped more than any other manager in the major leagues when you come to think it over.

THE loss of a valuable pitcher is always counted as being a heavier one than that of an average player in the lineup, and when you consider the plight of the Buccaneer staff it has got to be admitted that the locals have suffered more than any rival.



Fred Fitzsimmons.

KREMER, Hill and Meadows, who won a total of 60 games for the Bucs last year, have been practically helpless through injuries this spring.

Just consider the value of those three pitchers in their normal form, and then reflect that the three have won only three games for Pittsburgh up to date with the season a month old, and there can hardly be any doubt in your minds that the Pirates and Bush have been hit harder by misfortune this spring than any other club or manager in the big show.

IT is quite a tribute to the strength of the Corsairs in other departments that in view of the heavy pitching handicap they have won seven of their last 10 and nine of their last 13 games and are still above the .500 mark, even if they did slip back into the second division yesterday. It enables the fans to look forward with great confidence and hope to the time when things will be normal in the Pirate's camp.

BABE RUTH was precisely on schedule time as compared with his record-breaking season of 1928 when he made his seventh home run of the season, as it was on May 10, 1927, that he cracked out No. 7 against Pitcher Gaston of St. Louis.

THE Babe must make another homer today to keep up with his 1927 record, however, as he registered his eighth four-baser in 1927 on May 11 against Pitcher Nevers of St. Louis.

PITTSBURGH JUMPS IN LEAD

The world-wide campaign of the Studebaker Corporation of America to make May the champion sales month as Studebaker is the champion of cars, is little more than a week old, and already The Studebaker Sales Co., of Pittsburgh has piled up a commanding lead. The Pittsburgh sales teams have backed up their claims of being the livest in the country with wagers. To keep Pittsburgh in the lead, liberal allowances are to be had for used cars. The box score today:

PITTSBURGH . . 80,500 points

Cleveland . . . 54,400 points
Buffalo . . . . 37,500 points
Philadelphia . 47,600 points
Baltimore . . . 35,800 points

BUY MILEAGE not merely tires

It's most miles per dollar that counts. Put your tire buying on this basis. Quality and service result in mileage. Look over our low prices—and keep in mind that all our tires are made by Firestone. That means more mileage is built-in. Our regular service gets this mileage out for you, through month after month of trouble-free motoring. Drive in any time and let our experienced men inspect your tires, rims and wheels. They make sure everything which affects tire mileage is in good running order. A few minutes' inspection every now and then will result in thousands of extra miles from your tires. Cut your tire costs this year. Come in now and trade in your worn tires on a new set, and enjoy care-free motoring. We make liberal allowance for your old tires.

Banking Takes Democratic Step; Loans for Workers.

By B. C. FORBES

BANKING, including borrowing, is being brought within reach of the humblest. Democracy has made many advances since the war, in the field of finance it has made extraordinary strides in this country.

The announcement of America's largest bank that it has perfected a plan to make loans of $50 to $1,000 to workers at a straight 6 per cent rate is the latest illustration.

CREDIT used to be extended for the most part only to governments and rulers and potentates. With the growth of commerce came commercial borrowing. But the granting of banking credit to individuals not engaged in commerce only recently became an important factor in this country.

TO BUY on the installment plan meant the granting of credit on a scale never before known. This credit was extended by the seller, but the installment seller usually turned to some financial institution to share the burden.

Meanwhile, machinery has been organized in most parts of the country to enable farmers to borrow on reasonable terms. The banking facilities available for our farm-folk today are incomparably better than they were even a few years ago.

Both movements represent the democratization of credit.

LOAN sharks have plagued the world for centuries. This country has had its share of them. Of late years, however, banking or other financial institutions have sprung up which have done quite an extensive business in making loans to persons of modest means on terms much less burdensome than those imposed by loan sharks.

THAT the example set by the National City Bank of New York will rapidly be followed throughout the country can be taken for granted. It is such a logical step along the line American banking is aggressively following. The plan is simplicity itself. The borrower is not called upon to pledge home or other collateral but simply has to find two friends willing to endorse his obligation. Repayment is made by weekly or monthly or other agreed-upon installments.

No fee is imposed for "investigating" the applicant or for any other purpose, as heretofore has usually been the rule among those granting small loans to individuals. Under the new, clean-cut plan, the borrower pays 6 per cent, nothing else.

AMERICAN bankers certainly cannot be accused of overlooking ordinary folks. Banking advertising has become a feature of American life. It has been made as easy to bank by mail as to mail a letter. In many cases banking institutions have made arrangements whereby workers can have their employers deduct a certain sum from the weekly pay envelope and have it deposited in a savings account, thus making saving both easy and automatic. As a matter of fact, no nation approaches ours in savings depositors—we have over 48,000,000, with total savings deposits of more than $26,000,000,000.

AGAIN, we are making unprecedented progress in creating a nation of investors. All indications are that the number of individuals of moderate means, now interested in stocks, is far beyond anything ever before known. Democratization has been at work in this direction; several millions of employes have been introduced to the idea of stock-owning through the action of their employers in making stock available to workers on easy installment payments.

THE better banking is understood by the millions, the better will it be for the future of this country—and the worse it will be for promoters of fake securities.

QUIET TRADING SESSION ON LOCAL STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, May 11.—(AP.)—Encouraged by easier call money rates and satisfied that the New York Federal Reserve rediscount rate is safe at the 4 per cent level for another week, the bulls resumed their activities in the curb market today. Scores of issues, particularly utilities and industrial specialties, went soaring to new high price records. Successive waves of profit-taking failed to cause any major reactions.

American Gas and Electric was boosted to a new top at 184, allowed to slide to 178 and then shoved back to 182, up nearly 6 points. American Light and Traction, Electric Investors, Northern Ohio Power and Penn Ohio Edison also were lifted to new peaks. Electric Bond and Share, United Gas Improvement and others moved up 3 points or more.

Ford Motor of Canada soared 37 points to a new top at 630. Subsequently it dropped back to 600 and then recovered 12 points. Niles Bement Pond was lifted 20 points on a wave of buying officials of the company say they cannot explain, unless it be on expected big earnings by subsidiaries. It opened at 89, a new peak, slid down to 83, and then climbed back to 88⅝. The aero suppy issues, Atlas Plywood, Bendix, Deforest, Radio, Galesburg Coulter Disc, Lehigh Coal and Navigation and Northwest Engineering also reached new peaks during the advance. Such issues as Bancitaly, Columbia Graphaphone, Todd Shipyard, Warner Brothers Pictures and others gained as much as 3 points.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND VIEWS

Loans at New Peak.

The increase in brokers' loans reported by the Federal Reserve Bank of New York was offset as a market influence by the fact that the New York institution retained the 4 per cent rediscount rate. However, there was some nervousness over the fact that the ratio of reserves to deposits and note liabilities declined to 71.6 per cent, the lowest for some time, but still well above the legal requirement. Loans to brokers by New York Federal Reserve member banks totaled $4,361,106,000 on May 9, an increase of $79,451,000 over the previous week. This is a new high record for these loans and compares with the 1928 low point of $3,697,709,000 recorded March 7.

Buying in Third Liberties.

Federal reserve banks have been authorized by Secretary Mellon to purchase, at the option of holders, Third Liberty loan 4¼ bonds up to $50,000,000. The offer will remain open until May 15, and is a continuation of the retirement program for these bonds which mature next September 15. Approximately $1,405,000,000 of the Third Liberty 4¼s are now outstanding.

Glass Advance Reflected.

The American Glass Review tomorrow will say: "Favorable reaction to the recent announcement of an increase in window glass selling prices was in evidence throughout the trade during the week. The demand for window glass was on the increase during the week. While the demand for plate glass has been slightly less active of recent weeks, orders on hand are reported in ample volume to maintain operating schedules on a satisfactory basis. The same holds true for the rough rolled and wire glass industry."

Bullish on General Motors.

J. S. Bache & Co. say: "The extra of $2 per share declared by General Motors will probably be viewed as disappointingly small by only a small faction in the Street, whose predictions were that $2.50 to $3 extra might be declared. With the news out a moderate amount of selling may be invited, but it is our opinion that this premier motor issue is in a buying rather than in a selling zone and we would therefore view such recessions as may develop as buying opportunities in the stock. We anticipate further developments of benefit to stockholders from this company this year and are of opinion that prior to their occurrence materially higher levels will be seen for the stock."

Niles-Bement Soars on Curb.

Niles-Bement-Pond common continued as one of the sensations of the New York Curb trading today, opening at 89 with an overnight gain of about 15 points. In the last few days the stock has gained 50 points, as traders trying to buy the issue discovered that there was very little of it available. The company owns the entire capital stock of Pratt & Whitney, builders of an air-cooled aeroplane motor somewhat after the design of Wright's "Whirlwind." In addition, Niles-Bement is an important manufacturer of machine tools and heavy industrial machinery.

Reducing Long Holdings.

Many traders who have been particularly active on the long side of the market for some time have been quietly reducing their holdings recently with the idea of replacing the stocks on reactions. Conservative commission houses have been advising customers to lighten their accounts as a protection against a technical decline. All this has contributed toward bringing selling into the market. Thus far this supply has been well absorbed, with evidence of good outside buying when stocks have receded.

NARROW MOVES IN LEADERS

There was a noticeable slackening of trading interest on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange in the early session today with prices showing only a few minor changes from the levels prevailing on the close last night.

Standard Sanitary held close to the 40-level established in yesterday's market but only a small volume of the stock was turned over. In New York, where the shares were admitted to the trading yesterday, the price was substantially the same as in this market although there was a little more business in the issue on the "big board."

Lone Star Gas also held to a narrow range, selling around 52 as compared with the price of 54 reached on the upturn a few days ago. One of the leading interests in the company is scheduled to leave for Europe next Tuesday and there is a supposition in the Street that any new developments may be deferred until his return. In the meantime the stock seems to have found a balanced market around 52.

Arkansas Gas Company, in the official list, was a small fraction higher while the Arkansas Gas Corporation (new company) common shares made a new high on the curb. There were rumors of further consolidations involving the new company with one story to the effect that the Arkansas Gas Corporation common will go into a new deal at about $5 a share.

In the late market Arkansas Gas Company responded to the gossip circulating in the street this morning and sold up to a new top for the current movement. The unlisted shares also moved higher.

PGH. COAL OUT TO BEAT HIGH RAIL RATE

The Pittsburgh Coal Company's plan to handle its own coal shipments and thus defeat discriminatory freight rates in this territory will be aired at a hearing before the finance division of the Interstate Commerce Commission in Washington Monday. At that time the Montour Railroad, owned by the Pittsburgh Coal Company, will ask the Interstate Commerce Commission's approval of the controlling interest in the Pittsburgh, Lisbon and Western Railroad, and the Pittsburgh, Lisbon and Western, at the same time, will ask authority to construct two branch lines, connecting Smith's Ferry on the Ohio River with Youngstown, O.

Coal from the Pittsburgh district would be floated on the Ohio River to Smith's Ferry and thence carried over the new rail line to Youngstown. Eventually, it is declared, the same route would be used in carrying lake cargo shipments to the lake ports. This would enable the Pittsburgh Coal Company to handle its own shipments. H. J. German, president of the Montour Railroad, announced the plan yesterday. The Pennsylvania and New York Central have filed petitions of intervention with the Interstate Commerce Commission.

HOSPITAL FILES 2 MORE SUITS

Two more suits to collect money pledged to the Montefiore Hospital building fund were instituted today, one against Frank A. Weinstein, North Negley avenue, for $5,000, and one against Morris Barkin for $1,000.

It is claimed in each instance that the subscriber gave a written pledge to pay the amount in six semi-annual installments, the last now overdue, and has not made any payments.

The hospital drive, conducted in 1924, raised $2,300,000. Relying on these and all other subscriptions and pledges, the hospital purchased property and let the contract for a new hospital, these items totaling nearly $2,200,000, and it is stated in the suit that the balance of the $2,300,000 will be needed for equipment when the building is completed.

CARRY 29TH WD. ROW TO COYNE

Wednesday night's Republican ward committee meeting in the Twenty-ninth Ward has stirred up a rumpus and demand has been made on City Chairman James J. Coyne not to recognize Fred A. Sacher as the elected chairman. Eugene L. Crow claims to have been elected, and said today that he has affidavits signed by 39 of the 69 committeemen who attended the meeting that they had voted for Crow. There are 72 members in the ward committee.

Sacher acted as temporary chairman and it is claimed made announcement that he had been elected chairman by a vote of 38 to 31. After Sacher made the announcement and left the hall the Crow forces organized another meeting. A rival organization is promised in the ward if Crow's election is not recognized.

FREE SUSPECTS IN ROBBERY

John B. Sloan, 32, of 14 Furley street; Walter Walzer, 22, of 229 North Fairmount street; Henry Zodach, 20, of 1018 Merino street, and Ernest Sancfis, 22, 410 Marlow street, were discharged in police court today in connection with the robbery of $2,000 from the home of Mrs. Hattie Griebel, 2400 Spring Garden avenue, on April 26.

Mrs. Griebel could not identify the prisoners as the robbers and the men furnished an alibi.

WARREN MAN'S BODY FOUND IN CHAUTAUQUA

WARREN, Pa., May 11.—(INS.)—The body of Milton J. Beaty, 45, prominent Warren sportsman, was found in Chautauqua Lake today, according to members of the family here. Beaty had been missing since testing out a speed boat near Lakewood, N. Y., a month ago. The boat, capsized, was found and he was believed to have drowned.

10-FOOT FALL OFF ROOF IS FATAL TO REPAIRMAN

A fall of 10 feet from a roof caused the death of Peter Caputa, 18, of 129 Finley street last night. The youth was repairing a roof on a porch at the home of V. Q. Hickman of 134 South Fairmount avenue, when he fell. He suffered a facture of the skull. He died while being removed to West Penn Hospital.

BUGS BAER Says

MR. COOLIDGE is looking around for his Summer White House. If you have a shack that you cannot rent just offer it to the President.

He spent last summer in the Black Hills attired in a one-piece cowboy hat and trousers permanently waved.

This year Cal wants to be a country gentleman. We have a beautiful home in the Mississippi Valley if Cal will like water as far as the second floor.

ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

If he wants scenery let him look in an Easter egg.

Great Neck offers possibilities. Builder must sacrifice buyer to save himself. Great Emptor is below zero.

Stucco, three-car dining room, beach, park, folding chimneys, all-year round exposure to light, westerly mortgages.

Back yard decorated freshly by next door neighbors. Parquet flooring, wood-burning bath tubs. Also a very fine dunking alcove.

All we ask is that he keeps that sap bucket off the piano.

In case Cal desires to be photographed as a bathing beauty this summer, how about a palatial seashore home only a sleeper jump from high tide?

Others as low as twenty thousand, but will take more. An attempt to portray the beauties of this compo-board shack would only make a beggar of description and a bum out of the truth.

If Cal owns a lot somewhere we will build him a home on easy payments. Only five minutes' walk from the freight yards, loud-speakers in every corner, shrubs, flowers and three acres of discarded building materials.

If interested, write this office for further impediments.

Mirrored
English Student of America Glimpses the Truth

It is refreshing to read in the London Times a comment upon our country which shows understanding. The Englishman who writes it knows America.

Discarding a much-used slogan, he points out that

"Blood is only thicker than water when it can be recognized as blood, and even then it tends to give you family recriminations without a family."

He adds:

"A great deal of varied blood has flowed into the veins of America since the days of the Pilgrim Fathers, changing and enriching the American character. The United States today presents in many ways a stranger and more foreign scene than any we can find in those countries which share our common European civilization."

Even the language bond is not as tight as many think it is:

"The United States is not an English-speaking country. Why should she be? What nation worthy of her salt would not have evolved a language of her own? The same word used in two different continents will have a different echo, evoke a different image, derived from some different association of ideas. It is, in fact, when words ostensibly the same are being used by Englishmen and Americans that misunderstanding is most subtle and far-reaching."

But we are not, as Europe says, money mad:

"I know no country where generosity is more universal or stinginess so little known. Nor is this a question of lavish display. It is a fundamental sharing instinct which is the most charming, as it is also the most universal, American characteristic."

Would that more Europeans might be made to see this.

Basic Farm Relief

Representative Reed has called attention to another need of farm relief—education fitting farm boys to stay on the farm and succeed.

There are a million farm boys in American public schools between the ages of fourteen and twenty-one. Only 10 per cent of them are receiving instruction in the vocation of farming.

There are 11,561 rural high schools. In less than 30 per cent of these is vocational agriculture taught.

Trained minds are as necessary in farming as in any other calling. We need a department of education with representation in the Cabinet and greatly enlarged Federal aid.

Congratulate Them Now
"Bye and Bye" Will Be Too Late

FOR PRESIDENT AND VICE-PRESIDENT.

Ninety-nine men in a hundred will not recognize these gentlemen, Norman Thomas on the right, James H. Maurer on the left. But these two men have been nominated for President and Vice-President—by the Socialist Party.

They are cheerful, law-abiding citizens, although many of the ignorant imagine that the label "Socialist" means a desire to murder somebody, or at least take his property and divide it.

They both know that they can't be elected. Nevertheless, they will make a good fight. They and their friends will be speaking from now until the polls close. And, strangely enough, those that watch the polls FOR THE SOCIALISTS often do more than any of the old parties to prevent cheating at the polls.

The interesting thing about a Socialist political worker is that he is HONEST.

As the late Richard Croker, boss of Tammany Hall, used to say, "There is no use buying a Socialist, for even if you did buy him, he wouldn't stay bought."

Victor L. Berger, who represents Socialism in Congress, expects that there will be a big Socialist movement next fall. He will be disappointed.

Unemployment is diminishing. Times are good, and will be better next November.

About 1,000,000 that could vote call themselves "Socialists" in the United States. But in good times the Socialist often fails to vote for his party.

The wisest man in Russia, leader of the Bolsheviki, says, "You can't spread Communism in a country that, like the United States, has 24,000,000 automobiles."

And that's the SOLEMN TRUTH.

JUST THE THING NEEDED

Garrett P. Serviss Says:

The Individual

ONE hears a great deal nowadays about the coming reduction of all individuals into mere units in a future grand "social organism," which is to be a universal efficiency machine. Some persons profess to look upon this idea with warm approval, though they show no haste to surrender their own particular freedom as individuals. It has become a kind of shibboleth among the worshipers of the great god "Efficiency."

Gen. John J. Carty, of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, in a published address, after recalling certain prognostications of Professor Edwin Grant Conklin concerning the direction of human evolution, and the ideas of Mr. W. Trotter about the part which increasingly free intercommunication between individuals of the species is to play in such evolution, says:

"It is the function of the engineer to provide for the extension of the spoken word by means of electrical systems of intercommunication which will serve to connect the nervous system of each unit of society with all of the others, thus providing an indispensable element in the structure of that inconceivably great and powerful organism which it is believed will be the ultimate outcome of the marvelous evolution which society is to undergo."

And further he says: "While it would be folly to ignore the claims of religion and philosophy, it would be a grave error to conclude that, in order to avoid disaster, we must restrict progress in the application of science to material things. On the contrary, we must accelerate progress in all the sciences, for the knowledge thus gained will be required in preparing the individual man to function as a sane and peaceful unit in the ultimate social organism."

Now, is it so certain, or really so desirable, that the individual is to be submerged in the general, and turned into a mere contented little cog, occupied endlessly in falling mechanically into its place in the rack to keep the great machine efficiently active? Efficient action for what, and for whose satisfaction?

We have been taught that human souls are individually responsible to a higher creative power; that they are endowed with freedom of will and of action, in order that they may work out their "salvation" (or any evolution), for themselves; the whole discernible history of humanity has been a process of growth and multiplication of the powers of the individual. The higher he has risen and the more freedom he has won, the greater has become his usefulness, both for himself and for his race.

The advance of mankind has been due to individualism, and to the inequality among individuals. Superior personalities have lifted the race. Destroy the individual and you destroy ambition, and all incentive to progress. Genius is essentially individual; the advocates of the grand organism and human cog idea tacitly admit that, for they cannot possibly picture themselves as serving for cogs. In the back of their minds they are not cogs, but directors, managers, or geniuses behind the machine.

I do not believe that science will have so sad a fate as to serve only to reconcile men to the loss of their individuality, and, worse than that, to help chain them to the galleys of this hard-eyed god. What kind of a Moloch would that be to fright the very heavens, grown fat by devouring human personality! No, as the world becomes more united each human soul will be richer, greater, and more complete.

Cannibalism

JUST as the quota law had assumed the status of a habit, America is threatened with a new immigration peril.

The Good Citizenship League of Flushing, N. Y., is proposing to import the culex pipiens. In case you are not acquainted with the culex pipiens, permit us to explain that it is a perfectly respectable inhabitant of France engaged in the noble work of etomopro-phylaxis.

It is a mosquito that eats other skeeters. So voracious is its cannibalism that in a single day it is capable of doing away with thousands of the home-grown or Jersey variety.

We're not sure that we want such a savage insect buzzing about. Supp[illegible] hunger should be directed toward man!

Test Yourself

WHAT are the possibilities of your mind?

Do you think you have reached the limit of your mental capacity?

Because you think you cannot do better you are actually getting worse.

You have ceased to try new avenues of expression.

You do not read with an idea of learning new facts each day.

You have given up and located yourself in a position beneath your ability simply because you do not want to put forth the effort necessary to hold the better job.

You are where you have few severe tests.

Occasionally you wish you might do something worth while.

At such times you sit down and try to evolve something practical for a few hours, but finally give it up.

You think you can't make your work valuable.

Isn't it ridiculous to make such slight tests of your brain power and be satisfied to let it end there?

Be fair to yourself.

The Rhyming Optimist
By ALINE MICHAELS

Undine

SHE lost the freedom of green, watery ways,
The foam and sparkle of translucent waves,
And loveliness of coral architraves.

And in return she gained the weight of care,
Mourned with the griefs of those she loved, knew fears
And all the kindred burdens men must bear,
Resigned her pearls that she might share in tears.

She lost her lilting laugh and airy grace,
Her subtle charm of mystery's aureole;
But gave triumphantly, for in their place
She, losing, gained through love a deathless soul!

Taking Chances

A VERY select dinner was being given by a Mayfair hostess, and in the course of the meal her pearls came in for a great deal of admiration from her guests.

In fact, they were so much admired that the good lady passed them round the table for everyone to inspect them closely.

Ten minutes later the pearls had disappeared!

The host, wishing to avoid an unpleasant scandal, placed a silver bowl in the center of the table, switched out the lights, and begged the thief to put back the pearls in the silver bowl.

For two minutes the company sat in darkness. Then the lights went up and they saw that the silver bowl had also disappeared.

Tales that are Told

Disappointing

THE big house in the wood had been untenanted for years and was supposed to be haunted.

In despair the owner had the place redecorated, fitted with electric light and every possible labor-saving device, and offered the whole concern at a very modest rental.

Later he happened to hear that a man had been shown over the house, and in great excitement he rang up the agent.

"Is it true someone's taken the house at last?" he asked.

The agent's voice was sad.

"So far he's only taken the electric-light fittings," he replied. "I'r'aps he'll come back for the rest."

What a Title Does

HER father was an American multi-millionaire, and, consequently, the daughter had everything a girl could desire.

But one day she told her father that she wanted a change, and he accordingly arranged a world tour for her. To keep her company she had her governess, who was a Russian baroness.

At one stage of the journey a newspaper reporter caught sight of the governess' name on the passenger list of the liner and asked her to pose for the camera.

The baroness was very obliging, and while she was chatting brightly to the journalist her charge came up.

"H'm," remarked the reporter, making a further note in his book, "I see you travel with an American maid."

Great Expectations

THE hasty-tempered old gentleman brushed by the sign, "Umbrellas recovered in half an hour," and entered the large shop.

"What can we do for you, sir?" asked a youth behind the counter respectfully.

"I want my umbrella recovered," was the abrupt reply. "And be quick about it."

"Of course, sir. May I have it, sir?" inquired the youth rather nervously.

"Have it?" shouted the man with a hasty temper. "What do you mean? Isn't that what I'm in here for? I haven't got the umbrella. I left it either in the train or at the pictures three days ago. Perhaps you will be so good as to recover it for me in the time you state."

On the Target

AN IRISHMAN, who had been out of work for some time, found employment in an observatory, where he was a kind of general handyman.

For the first week Patrick was very happy. He had very little to do, but this did not last for long. During the second week he was put on night duty, attending to a certain learned professor who was making an experiment.

One evening Patrick paused to watch the professor peering through a large telescope. At that moment a shooting star fell.

"Man alive," exclaimed the son of Erin in astonishment, "Oi should niver have reckoned you such a foine shot!"

Chances in Plenty

THEY stood on the edge of a crowded platform on the Underground Railway.

It was obvious that the young man was very much in love with his fair companion. As a matter of fact, he was pleading with her to marry him.

The girl, like many others of her sex, could not make up her mind. The young man was desperate.

"If you won't listen to me I'll throw myself in front of that train that's just coming in!" he cried.

The girl, who was powdering her face, finished the operation hurriedly.

"For goodness' sake give me time to think," she said anxiously. "In any case, there'll be another train in two minutes."

THOUGHTS OF THE GREAT—

The wisdom of the wise and the experience of the ages may be preserved by the quotation.—Isaac Disraeli.

Every man has a rainy corner of his life, out of which foul weather proceeds and follows after him. —Richter.

New York Day by Day
By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, May 11.—Thoughts while strolling: Policemen who switch traffic just as you reach the curb. The easy-going pipe smokers on bus platforms. Brisk summer trade comes to the two-wheeled hansoms. A loose and bewildered horse from a riding academy.

Neckties embroidered with New York scenes. Ruby de Remer and Ben Troup. Charlie Driscoll's purple striped suit. Those young girls with skeptical eyes. Youth always has a tragic earnestness to those past 40. Bored matrons imprisoned in a dreadful leisure. And always shopping to forget.

A matinee idol walks slowly to his car at the curb and quickens a few pulses. He's entirely unconscious of the stares; I wouldn't fool you, Katherine Brush, the writer. Violet sellers. Brisk young men with frat pins who have launched their careers as bond salesmen.

Nothing so annoying as a roller-skater behind you. The mummified fellows who cling to the club windows throughout the summer. Charles Dana Gibson's minstrel collar. Russian thons on sale everywhere. A bare-headed man, handcuffed and blaspheming, is dragged into a patrol wagon.

Short topcoats of Teddy bear cloth. The watchman in plain clothes in front of John D. Rockefeller, Jr.'s, home. Those sedate and magnificent side street hotels that never advertise. And have a tomblike stillness. Must be terrible to cross the lobby in squeaking shoes and register from Gallipolis, O.

Ought to be a law against keeping puppies in stuffy dog shop windows. The sandwich stand with velvet draperies. That makes it a salon. Sign on a settlement house: "Happiness only comes when it is earned." The lemonade carts drawn by ponies—an East Side idea brought uptown.

Church bells ring. The sun flashes into the splendor of its daily death. And Broadway quickens for the night. The furtive figures who come out with dusk. One sign pops on, and in a twinkle the street is aglow.

One of the big transient hotels in Times Square takes no chances with beats. It renders a bill to all patrons every third morning. The bill must be paid by six that evening. Or out you go!

* * *

It is not easy these days to leave a telephone book in a $2 suitcase in lieu of a week's board. The three-day limit is being seriously considered in all taverns. And when the staggering amounts out of which they are defrauded yearly are scanned, they cannot be blamed. The average hotel is tolerant. Only the professional beat is prosecuted. The victim of unavoidable hard luck is given a chance to settle.

* * *

In the best hotels the familiar type of derbied Peeping Tom house detective is no more. He was the bungiesome bully who regarded every patron as a potential crook and was out to "get" him. He jockeyed many reputable hotels into awkward law suits, and now his wings hav been clipped. The new type merely reports what he sees to an executive in charge of such matters, and action depends upon superior judgment.

* * *

There is an actor who has had so many trying experiences with house detectives that when there is a knock at his hotel door now he instinctively calls out: "All right. I'm packing."

* * *

Hotels are at the mercy of the public because of the nature of their business. It took the stately Waldorf several years to rid Peacock Alley of the famous "We Boys"—a group of flim-flammers in tony clothes who were marvelously expert in confidence rackets. The high class crook gravitates naturally to the hotel lobby, because he is likely to meet people of importance. And that is the chief reason for the small lobby in the modern hotel.

The Christening
By DR. FRANK CRANE

An old man of some 70 years being called upon to make some remarks at a Christening responded as follows:

We have gathered here today to consecrate this child by baptism to the service of God, which means the service of humanity.

We hail this child as one of the coming generation, one of those who are to take up the torch of progress which is beginning to totter in older hands. Age is creeping upon us all, but, thank God, youth is springing up all about us to take up the problems we have left unfinished.

We wish for this child, therefore, and for all children, a sounder body than our own, a stronger mind and a purer soul.

Let him be vigorous and strong, for no one can help the weak and inefficient except those who have stores of strength in themselves!

Let his mind be furnished with sound knowledge and the training of a deep wisdom! A man's value to the world is coming more and more to mean the value of his mind.

May he have quick hands and strong, but above all may they be directed by a straight-thinking and active brain!

But most of all we wish for him and for all his fellows that cleanness of soul and that highness of ideals that shall equip him nobly to bear his part in the drama of life.

We who are older look back with regret upon much that we have done. May he learn from our experience and profit by our mistakes!

What does it mean to us to wish this young voyager success as he is getting under way for his life? May he successfully live out all storms! May his ship staunchly buffet the waves and may at last he reach port crowned with success!

We ourselves have lived in a wonderful age. Some of us have seen the rise of the telephone, the radio and the airplane. What greater wonders shall he not see! We envy the part that he shall play in his generation.

The interesting thing about this earth is not that men die, but that life continues. Go tell it to the stars about us that on this planet the earth greens every spring and flowers bloom anew, and new and lusty youth takes up the program of life where their elders lay it down.

Go, therefore, O child of promise, to greet better days.

We hand you a world cursed with war, cursed with noxious drugs and with all forms of insanity. May it be yours to help make this world a better place to live in. May you be free from superstition and the trammels of the past! May you have boldness enough to carry out your profoundest convictions! May your hand and feet be unshackled from the fetters of fear!

To the generation that shall succeed you, may you give a better world!

OH, THESE WOMEN!
By LEOLA ALLARD.

ARE you a wook?

A wook is a type of woman no one need ever worry about. She always comes out all right.

Wooks are option holders. Their ex-husbands and ex-sweethearts never get thoroughly removed from the influence, and no matter what happens they always bob up to inquire if the wook is all right and if she needs anything.

A wook is unconsciously one, and can do nothing about it. No woman who isn't a wook can get to be one. They just are, and that's all.

Wooks get cross-eyed looking around for interesting people. They cannot be wholly disinterested in those about them.

Yet, a wook is a one-man woman, and devotes herself unselfishly to the man she cares about. It is usually the fault of the man when her romances run to grief, for she is not an excellent picker.

A man who draws a wook is a lucky fellow.

They never take advantage. They are emotional suckers.

B. M. Werner, who coined the word the other evening, says:

"Wooks are like double mint gum, the flavor lasts."

Wooks never turn against you. They are true. There isn't one turn in a carload of wooks.

Wooks find it difficult to say "No."

Every wook has a nice voice.

Mr. Werner says he once sent for a girl to hire her as a stenographer. He asked her: "Do you know shorthand?" She said, "No."

"Do you know book keeping?"

"No."

But her voice was so nice, all the men in the office decided she was the girl for the job and she got it. Then they hired an accountant to teach her. She turned out to be a wow.

"She was a wook," says Mr. Werner.

Words of the Wise

The joys of meeting pay the pangs of absence;
Else who could bear it?
—Rowe.

Get your enemies to read your works in order to mend them, for your friend is so much your second self that he will judge too like you. —Pope.

The "value" or "worth" of a man is as of all other things, his price; that is to say, so much as would be given for the use of his power. —Hobbes.

In all ordinary cases we see intuitively at first view, what is our duty, what is the honest part. In these cases doubt and deliberation is of itself dishonesty.—Butler.

Listen not to a talebearer or slanderer, for he tells thee nothing out of good-will; but as he discovereth of the secrets of others, so he will of thine in turn.—Socrates.
